BONDS PUT UP IN CRIMINAL CASES IN EGAN'S ASSETS

Murdered Constable Shown to Have Backed Bondsmen for Men Accused of "Bootlegging" and Robbery.

TWO CHARGED WITH IRELAND THEFT

Note for $6000, Given by Man Who Was Running Saloon Night of Killing,
Said to Have Been Paid.

Investigation of the financial affairs of William T. Egan, whose $97,000 estate involves many complications growing out of claims and counterclaims, has disclosed that Egan furnished security for the release on bond of a man charged with illegally transporting liquor, that he furnished security for release on bond of two men charged with safe robbery, and that he held the $6000 note of a self-confessed "bootlegger."

As has been told, Egan, a Democratic City Commissioner and Constable, who was mysteriously murdered by gangsters Oct. 31 in front of his saloon at 1400 Franklin avenue, left no will, James W. Egan, 16 years old, of 3605 Page boulevard, one of the claimants to the estate, contends that he is the son and heir of Egan. The latter's sister, Mrs. Marie Woelfel, of 4551 Arlington avenue, has applied for letters of administration, alleging that her brother never was married, and that he was not survived by a son.

It also has been disclosed that Egan acted as private banker for a group of his Fifth Ward constituents, and a search is being made for a memorandum book in which he kept a record of his financial accounts. He invariably carried the book in his pocket, but it was not found when he was searched at the city hospital.

Claim Against Bondsmen.
In the history of Egan's estate is a claim against Samuel Epstein, a bondman, for the return of $10,000 Liberty Bonds deposited by Egan with Epstein as security for the signing of bonds by William T. Colbeck and David (Chippy) Robinson, who were identified as having participated in a safe robbery at the home of Ward S. Ireland, 6825 National bridge road.

It will be recalled that six men entered the Ireland home at 2 a. m., July 24, 1920, under the pretext that they were revenue agents, looking for whiskey, and blew a safe there. Ireland reported that jewelry, cash and securities valued at $12,000 were taken. Later Ireland named Robinson as one of the men who worked on the safe and Colbeck as one of the men who pointed a revolver at him during the robbery. A search of Colbeck's room revealed an internal revenue agent's badge and a revolver. Colbeck and Robinson are still awaiting trial.

Another of Egan's assets is a claim against a surety company, based on its receipt to Morris Multin for $5000 par value of Liberty Bonds, owned by Egan and loaned by him to Multin to put up as security for a $1500 bond furnished for Multin, following his arrest May 26, 1920, on a Federal warrant charging him with illegally transporting whiskey, 15 barrels of which were seized by government agents in the basement of a commission store at 917 North Fourth street, after being shipped here from Louisville.

Liquor Shipment Traced.
Government agents who traced the shipment said the whiskey found in the cellar was part of a total shipment of 50 barrels consigned to Multin. The latter had obtained a permit to do business as a wholesale dealer in liquor for non-beverage purposes. His case is still pending. The note for $6000, bearing interest at 6 per cent from March 15 last, was given by William P. Doerflinger, a paroled convict, who, when asked by the police to account for $6000 found in his possession, where he was arrested March 1, 1920, said that he had made it by "bootlegging" whiskey. He told the police that he and a man known to him as "Red" Powers had purchased Egan's saloon at 1400 Franklin avenue three months before and had been selling a stock of liquors surreptitiously.

The note, now under investigation.

VIENNA MOBS RAISE RED FLAG, LOOT LUXURY SHOPS, BREAK INTO BIG HOTELS

Serious Rioting Occurs in Austrian Capital After Demonstration by Crowds in Front of Parliament Building.

By the Associated Press.
VIENNA, Dec. 1.—Rioting of a serious nature broke out in Vienna today following a great demonstration before the Parliament building, where red flags were raised on improvised masts. The crowds then began smashing windows and looting shops dealing in articles of luxury.

Large crowds also attacked a number of fashionable hotels in most of which foreign guests reside. The New Bristol was the first of these hostilities to be assaulted. Its great doors were battered down, thus permitting the crowds to pour through into the building. They began to break windows, some of which were as high as the third floor, and to hurl bedding and furniture into the mob crowded in the street below.

The old Bristol Hotel later suffered the same fate, its costly furniture and rich tapestries being hurled out to the cheering crowds which packed the streets surrounding the building. The Grand Hotel, the largest in the city, and the Hotel Imperial, also were looted. The activities in these hotels, however, appeared to have been confined to the lower floors.

The Vienna police were apparently helpless, many squads of them being standing quietly by as onlookers.

Plunder Throughout City.
Scenes of plunder occurred throughout the entire city. Thousands of dollars' worth of plate glass was smashed, until the principal streets looked like the wreck of a hurricane.

Authorities expressed belief that the disturbance was traceable to communists. It came very suddenly during a demonstration against the high cost of food, staged in front of the Parliament building, in which thousands joined. During the demonstration gangs suddenly appeared in the central part of the city, and began their work of destruction.

The rapid rise in the prices of food and clothing, the further depreciation of the crown in the exchange market and the bitter cold weather, together with the government's announcement that food subsidies were to be abolished, are considered to have combined to provoke the extremist element to disorder.

The police for the first time in many demonstrations that have occurred here, seem to have failed utterly in the role of preservers of the peace, or, at least, they were unable to assume, under instructions from the authorities, who may have feared turning a riot that thus far has been bloodless into a sanguinary affair.

Vienna, before the war the center of gaiety in Europe, has suffered more than any city in Central Europe since the armistice, the plight of the so-called middle class having been especially serious. While the theaters and cafes have continued to run in the old-time splendor, the fashion shops and jewelry stores have displayed glittering articles, it has been a serious matter for the great army of professional men, clerks and the like to obtain sufficient food.

Dr. Adolf Lorenz, the famous Vienna surgeon, who is in New York to treat lamian American children free as an expression of Austrian gratitude for American aid to the starving children of Austria, pointed out that his trip to America would have been impossible had not wealthy friends advanced money to him. He said the scientific men in Austria—and Vienna before the war—were largely destitute.

On a day about six years ago there was a dinner party in the home of Anton Weneke, a retired farmer of Edwardsville, Ill., at which 13 persons were present. One of his daughters remarked the fact as an ill omen. The following day Weneke's wife died.

Yesterday there was another dinner party in the Weneke home at which 13 persons were present and at which the former dinner party of 13 was recalled.

BUILDING WORKERS TO VOTE ON 20 PER CENT PAY CUT

Trades Council Agrees, on Advice of Arbitration Committee, to Submit Proposal of Builders to Membership.

RESULT TO BE MADE KNOWN BEFORE JAN. 1

Ballot to Provide for Acceptance or Rejection, With Blanket Contract Included
—No Recommendation.

The Building Trades Council, by a vote of 64 to 2, last night agreed to submit the proposal of the Master Builders' Association for a 20 per cent reduction in wages without recommendations to a referendum vote of the building trades unions as the first means of staying a big building program now being held up by high costs. Three delegates were absent.

The action was taken on recommendation of the Wage Arbitration Committee of the Council, which has been holding conferences with a similar committee of the master builders. The union committee which recommended the referendum is composed of Charles J. Lammert, chairman; Maurice J. Cassidy, secretary; Fred W. Schultz, cement finishers; John H. Barry, iron workers; P. J. Britz, engineers; and J. Lee Fritz, carpenters.

Director of Public Welfare Council, who was appointed by Mayor Kiel to represent the public in the conference of the committees, following a survey by the Post-Dispatch published Nov. 8, in which it was shown that building projects aggregating $20,000,000 were being held up by high costs, attended the meeting last night and urged the union committee to recommend the referendum vote.

The action came as a surprise to the master builders, they having been given to understand that the union leaders would not recommend the acceptance of a reduction in wages of more than 10 per cent, and in view of this stand they did not believe the union men would submit the suggestion to the membership.

A suggestion of the master builders for a blanket agreement, embracing all trades in one contract to begin at one time and expire simultaneously, was submitted to the wage question in the referendum vote.

After the meeting, which lasted three hours, Cassidy said: "We have agreed to submit without recommendations to our membership the proposals of Mr. Cunliff and the master builders for a 20 per cent reduction in wages and the approval of a blanket agreement providing certain readjustments of working rules and conditions. Our action was influenced chiefly by the progress of the construction in St. Louis, and, incidentally, to dispel the impression created by the Master Builders' Association and others that we have been without an information of conditions from our membership."

Data to Be Printed.
All the deliberations of record of our conferences with the master builders and Mr. Cunliff will be printed and submitted to our affiliated membership with the request that the members vote for acceptance or rejection. Thus we will have a free expression from the workmen themselves, which we charge that our committee is withholding information of actual conditions from the membership."

Cassidy explained how the vote will be taken. The survey of conditions made by Cunliff, in which it was shown that large building projects aggregating $15,270,000 would be started between January and April provided wages were reduced 20 per cent and other costs were lowered in proportion, together with all communications that have passed between the various interests involved, including special letters from the master builders and charts showing material prices, will be printed in pamphlet form at the expense of the Building Trades Council and the Master Builders' Association and sent to the various unions for distribution among their members.

How Vote Will Be Taken.
The vote will be given by ballot to study the situation, after which special meetings of the unions will be called to take the vote. The referendum will be given by ballot.

MISSING CHILD AND WOMAN NEIGHBOR ARE FOUND DEAD

Body of 3-Year-Old Chicago Girl Found Dismembered in Wash Boiler After an All-Night Search.

WOMAN'S THROAT CUT WITH KNIFE

One Leg of Child Found Block From House—Police Believe Woman Killed
Self as They Approached.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Following an all-night search for little Margaret Coughlin, 3 years old, her dismembered body was found today in a wash boiler in the home of Mrs. Ralph Pensis, a neighbor.

Shortly afterward, the body of Mrs. Pensis, with her throat slashed by a butcher knife, was found on the second floor of the Pensis cottage. Police immediately began a search for Ralph Pensis, the woman's husband.

Details of Discovery.
Police who called at the Pensis home, the last place the child was seen yesterday, found the doors locked this morning and could get no answer to their knocks. Finally they broke the door down and forced an entrance.

In the basement they discovered the little girl's torso in the wash-boiler, sitting on a pile of paper which police said they believed she had wrapped in paper, was found in a cardboard box. The other leg was found later a block away from the house.

Continuing their search they found Mrs. Pensis' body on a bed upstairs, her throat cut with a butcher knife. Two police officers, who had been called to the house by a neighbor, also were found. One of them, a woman, was found with a bullet wound in the forehead. The other, a man, was found with a bullet wound in the chest.

Policemen were sent in search of Josephine, a carpenter, who was believed to have gone to his work, and Dolley, 16, both of whom had gone to school.

Mrs. Pensis and Josephine told police yesterday that they last saw Margaret Coughlin about 2 o'clock when she came to the house with Josephine to play. In a few moments, they said, she complained of pain in her stomach, and ran out of the house and across the street to her own home.

The head and arms of the child, which were missing when the torso was discovered, were found in a newspaper beneath the pillow of the bed in which Mrs. Pensis and Josephine slept last night.

The police took finger prints on the butcher knife and about the murder scene. After questioning the woman's husband they locked him up.

Under questioning, Pensis said that when he came home from work yesterday, he found the basement "apparently flooded," but that when he went down the stairs, he found his wife killed.

Helped Hunt for Child.
"She said 'come on and let's go to a show,' so we went to a show and got back about 10 o'clock. Then we learned about the search for Margaret. My wife helped in the search and later went to bed. About 6:30 this morning my wife made breakfast and I went to work."

DECISION ON JAPAN'S NAVAL RATIO NOW UP TO MAIN CONFERENCE

Difference Between U. S. and Japan on Naval Ratio Explained

By CHARLES ROSS,
The Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

STRIPPED of all technicalities, the question at issue between America and Japan in the deadlock on the Hughes armament reduction proposal is whether or not ships in course of construction shall be counted as a part of existing naval strength.

Japan's continued insistence that she should have a 70 to 100 ratio of naval strength, as compared with Great Britain and the United States, is based on a computation of "existing strength" which takes no account of ships now being built. That is to say, in so far as the controversy relates to the United States, Japan would leave the unfinished ships of the American 1916 building program out of the calculation.

America's position remains today precisely what it was in the beginning, namely, that ships in course of construction represent an investment in national defense and must be counted as an essential part of naval strength.

When unfinished ships are counted, the 60 to 100 ratio proposed in the Hughes plan is declared by America's spokesmen to be more than fair to Japan on any conceivable basis of calculation. Japan's unfinished ships, as well as America's, were taken into consideration in arriving at the 60 to 100 ratio.

In a restatement of the attitude of the United States, it was asserted yesterday that the American delegation did not regard the question as even debatable. Manifestly, it was said, America could not ignore ship construction on which she has already spent over $300,000,000. The ships on the ways named in the percentage of completion up to 88 per cent, and some of them could be put into commission as fighting vessels—vessels among the best in the world—in short order, if the need should arise. The American people, it was remarked, would not for a moment support a proposition that overlooked vessels under construction.

There are minor differences between the American and Japanese naval experts in regard to figures representing the stage of completion of various ships, but all these, it was said, could be readily resolved by checking up conflicting claims against the known facts. The fundamental difference relates to a matter of policy and is not so easily settled.

CALL FOR CONFERENCE ON UNITY OF CHURCHES ISSUED

Congregational Commission Declares Readiness to Meet Representatives of Other Denominations.

By the Associated Press.
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 1.—What is termed by it "a call for a covenant of church unity" was issued today by the Commission on Unity of the Congregational Churches, declaring a readiness of the commission to confer with representatives of any other churches "concerning realignments or unification of our respective forces and ministries."

The call is signed by the Rev. Nehemiah Boynton, chairman; the Rev. Dr. Newman Smyth, New Haven, and Prof. Williston Walker, provost of Yale University. The call in part says:

"At this time, when the leading nations of the world are entering into a covenant of 16 years for the readjustment of their military forces for the sake of keeping the peace of the world, shall the churches of Christ do likewise? Shall the diplomats of the world be wiser for their generation than the leaders of the churches?"

"Surely this is no time for tarrying in theological consultations or standing idly within ecclesiastical limitations. Now is the time for practical agreements, and united action. Our spiritual unity needs to be made so visible that the man on the street may see it."

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The conference between the Japanese and Chinese on Shantung was adjourned late today until 2 p. m. tomorrow after decision had been reached as to the procedure to be followed in the conversations.

By CHARLES MICHELSON,
A Special Washington Correspondent
of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The deadlock over capital ships between the United States and Japan was brought to a head yesterday when the naval experts who have been considering in committee the capital ship ratio proposal of Secretary Hughes agreed to disagree, thus leaving the issue to be decided by the main conference. The American and Japanese delegates, it is pointed out, are expected to further discuss the question.

The Japanese are still standing pat on their demand for a 10-7 ratio. They base this demand on the contention that only ships in actual operation should be considered. This elimination of vessels under construction would deprive us of any credit on the books for the Colorado, for example, which is 90 per cent completed, while it would leave them the Mutau, which was figured in the calculations as 98 per cent completed, though it is actually being operated.

The long series of experts' conferences which preceded the formal commencement of Japan's proposal that she should be accorded 70 per cent of the United States' allotment of capital ships terminated yesterday in an agreement to report the disagreement to the Naval Limitations Committee, each chief expert reporting his own view to his chief. The Americans pointed out that in a few weeks the Colorado could be made nearly ready as is the Mutau in the event of war, which, after all, is the test of warships.

The Colorado would be part of our naval line and therefore she must be figured as part of our existing naval strength, just as the Japanese ships under construction are counted according to the percentage of completion which they have attained. The Japanese have countered: "Your merchants pay taxes on the iron that they use to build ships. They will earn in the next month the cost of the ship."

Shantung Plays a Part.
In spite of the deadlock, the feeling that the conference will succeed in the end is stronger. The Japanese yielded up everything at Versailles except Shantung, yet threatened to quit Vienna. On that point and on Shantung, some others have yielded. It is likely that the Shantung may again be the means of keeping the Japanese contented.

Both the Chinese and Japanese delegates have accepted the "best offer" of Secretary Hughes and the "best offer" of Secretary Hughes and the "best offer" of Secretary Hughes.

GRAND JURY HEARS DI FRANCO'S TELL KIDNAPING STORY

Father and Son, Who Was Abducted, Go Before Inquisitorial Body to Give Testimony.

EVIDENCE RELIED ON TO INDICT BULLARO

Parent and Son Questioned at Circuit Attorney's Office to Gauge Qualifications as Witnesses.

Constantino Di Franco, of 5256 Wilson avenue, appeared before the grand jury this afternoon with his son, Dominick, 7 years old, who was abducted Nov. 14 while on his way to the Shaw School, and was found Tuesday night at 1410A North Elvans street.

It was said at the Circuit Attorney's office that the grand jury this afternoon also probably would start an investigation of the kidnaping of Vincent Castelli, 5-year-old son of Vito Castelli, 4551 Laclede avenue. The Castelli boy was found Tuesday afternoon on the corner of 14th and Olive, after having been missing since Nov. 17.

Boys Are Questioned. Di Franco and his son, Dominick, and Fred Russo, 7 years old, who witnessed the kidnaping, were at the Circuit Attorney's office yesterday afternoon and were questioned by Assistant Circuit Attorney Parker, mainly for the purpose of gauging their intelligence and qualifications as witnesses.

Their testimony is relied upon to indict Vincent Bullaro, in whose custody the Di Franco boy was found. In a confession to the police Bullaro admitted he kidnaped the boy in an effort to extort $1000 from the boy's father.

One reason for deferring a grand jury investigation in the Castelli case is that the police are still looking for Frank Brundino on information that he has been seen in the kidnaping. Frank Palermo, in whose custody the Castelli boy was found, has said that a police picture of Brundino resembles the man who left the boy at the Palermo home.

Although he had persistently denied receipt of threatening letters before or after the kidnaping, or receipt of letters demanding ransom after the kidnaping, Di Franco did receive eight such letters, the texts of which he made public yesterday. Seven were delivered to his home by mail before the kidnaping of his son and one after it.

Letter Sent to Truckman. The first three were posted in East St. Louis and the others in St. Louis. One letter was sent to Paul Castello, a truck driver employed by Di Franco, and all the others were sent to Di Franco.

The letters, in order of receipt, were as follows: May 3, 1921. Dear Sir Constantino: We let you know that we need $5000 and you must send it as soon as possible. That's all.

May 9, 1921. Sir Constantino: In writing you the second letter we let you know we are not fooling and are serious to send the $5000 at peril of our life. Don't inform any police because you will pass a bad quarter of an hour. Also try to do it as quick as possible. It will be better for you. Enough, enough!

May 15, 1921. With this present we notify you that we addressed two letters to you and you make like you cannot hear, as we sent no more and all. So be careful. This will be the last letter we send you. The present calls for your decision. Otherwise you will meet some of our bad ones for a short time. Enough.

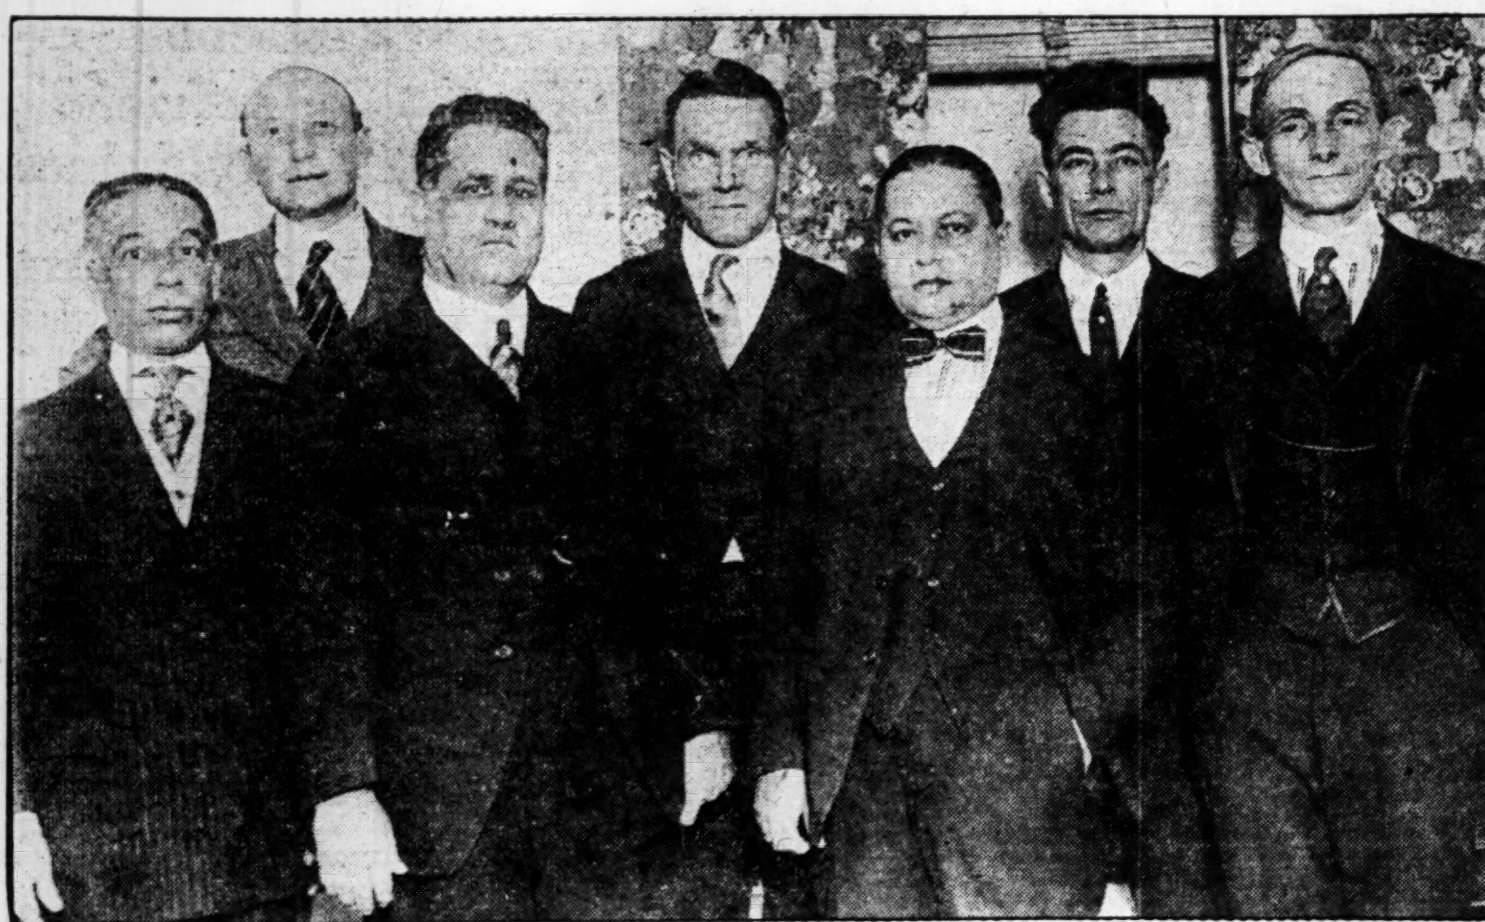

May 25, 1921. We address the fourth letter to tell you that your indifference compels us to harm you and the present calls for your resolution. Come to an agreement or prepare for death. Do as you like.

June 21. Dear Sir Paul Castello (mis-spelling for Castello)—With this we ask you not to work with Di Franco from today, otherwise your life will be in peril. You better take advantage of this letter and save your life. Good-by, good-by.

July 10, 1921. Dearest Friend: We pray you to send us $5000 at the peril of your life, otherwise we send you up like a balloon. See that we don't have to write any more and if you don't do this you and your property will be destroyed. So please come through, friend, without doing anything else. Good-by, good-by. Do your duty. It is better for you.

July 14, 1921. We have asked you to send us the $5000 and that we want. You don't want to hear anything yet, and if you don't understand we will make you understand. This will be the last one we will make. If you don't come to us we will come to you and make you fall.

Porto Rican Congressmen Come to Get Gov. Reilly's Scalp

to the ground. That is all. You will understand what I say. Goodby, goodby.

The letter demanding $50,000 ransom was received by Di Franco the day after his boy was kidnaped. As translated for the police it read: Dear Friend: We have done this to kidnap your boy because we want money. You don't have to look around very much. We want $50,000. So look out for your life. We are waiting for you and in case you talk too much and also to the law you will be destroyed. And we sign.

In the mail yesterday afternoon Di Franco received a letter postmarked 5:30 p. m. Tuesday, more than an hour after his boy was found. The writer said the boy was in Chicago and would be returned if Di Franco would pay $10,000 to a negro boy who would meet him on the King's highway viaduct. This letter is believed to have been the work of a joker or of someone who had no connection with the kidnaping, but tried to take advantage of it to extort money from Di Franco.

Result of the vote of each union will be sent to the Building Trades Council and the Master Builders' Association and when all the unions have cast their ballots and made returns, the votes will be counted.

The committees of the unions and master builders will meet tomorrow afternoon at the headquarters of the Century Building to decide upon the form of the ballot. Cassidy said the pamphlets with information of the deliberations of the committee should be ready for distribution among the unions by the first of next week, and that the result of the vote should be known before Jan. 1.

Cunliff Addresses Meeting. Cunliff attended the meeting to get the viewpoint of the union leaders in their meeting, and he was invited to address the delegates. He assured the unions that he did not intend to force any measure upon them, but that he had given them written pledges to start a big building program if costs would be reduced, and said that not more than $2,000,000 of the $15,750,000 pledged would be started unless wages were reduced at least 20 per cent.

All crafts engaged in the building trades, except bricklayers and plasterers, are affiliated with the Building Trades Council, and the ballots will be submitted to these two organizations also with the request that they take a vote on the proposals. There are about 12,000 members in the building trades unions.

At a conference of the Joint Committee of builders and union leaders Tuesday the union men were opposed to submitting the proposed 20 per cent wage cut to their membership, but said they would recommend a 10 per cent cut from the prevailing basis wage of $1.25 an hour, which would have reduced wages of skilled craftsmen from $10 to $9 a day. Cunliff and the contractors insisted upon 20 per cent, or $3 for eight hours' work, and the conference ended without agreement.

SUES FOR LOSS OF HER BEAUTY

Girl Wants $20,000 From Auto Salesman.

By the Associated Press. DAVENPORT, Ia., Dec. 1.—A $20,000 damage suit for the "destruction of Gertrude Thieleke's beauty" was filed against A. O. Conner, East Moline auto salesman, here yesterday as a result of an auto accident Saturday night when Miss Thieleke's face was badly cut from flying glass.

PORTO RICANS OBJECT TO OFFICER 'KANSAS CITY FIRED'

Unionists Reveal One Charge Against Governor Treats With Secret Service Head.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—An interview with the Porto Rican Unionists, headed by Antonio R. Barcelo, president of the Porto Rican Senate, who plans to go to Washington to ask President Harding to remove Gov. E. Mont Reilly, has revealed that one of the charges against the governor has to do with Reilly's appointment of George S. McClure of Kansas City, Reilly's home, as chief of the Porto Rican secret service.

An investigation of McClure, who receives $3200 a year, with a house and automobile in his new job, has revealed the delegation declared yesterday, that he was dismissed from the Kansas City police force for incompetency.

It is charged by the Porto Ricans that McClure, since Reilly's inauguration as Governor on July 30, 1921, has spent his time as a bodyguard for Reilly and in directing espionage against the Unionists.

The delegation has a copy of the Revista de Puerto Rico, said to be a politically independent journal, in which appears the following: "The (Gov. Reilly) says that he has invited to a banquet at the home of an honorable and refined citizen. The ladies are well dressed and so are the men. But here again he gives an exhibition of his vulgar manners. He takes off his coat at the banquet and in his shirt sleeves dines—an insult to the ladies present. His practice was followed by eight or ten of his party. One of the breach of social custom is flaunted in the eyes of the horrified spectators as 'American customs.'"

Objection is made to the dismissal of ex-Judge J. W. Bonner of Tennessee, auditor of Porto Rico since 1912, when he was appointed by President Taft, and a man highly respected by the Porto Rican people. Reilly, it is charged, put in his place R. T. Kissinger of Kansas City, and, having dismissed the assistant auditor, William McDowell, who had been in the government service since the occupation, appointed Kissinger's son in his place.

CAMPAIGN FOR VACCINATION

Precautions Against Smallpox Taken in Kansas City.

By the Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 1.—The Jackson County Medical Association today started a campaign to make vaccination against smallpox universal in Kansas City. A committee had been appointed to formulate some sort of standard as to just what constitutes immunity from the disease.

Four deaths and five new cases yesterday ended the third month of the smallpox epidemic. During September, October and November 102 persons have died and a total of 284 persons have had smallpox. Eleven persons still were quarantined in their homes last night. Sixty were in the isolation ward at General Hospital and 25 in the Old City Hospital, the negro section. The death rate has reached 35.9 per cent, the highest since the epidemic started.

Many women accompanied the hunting party. Numerous black bears were found. The Prince obtained his first kill by riding down his bear and placing a clean and vigorous thrust.

by the Public Administrator, will no doubt furnish an interesting angle to the final settlement of the estate, as Doering has informed relatives of Egan that he returned to Egan the $6000 he had borrowed and in connection with which he had given Egan the note.

His explanation of the transaction is that when he asked Egan to lend him the money Egan offered him the $6000 without requesting any security. Doering said that he insisted upon giving his note as a matter of business and that when he returned the money he did not take up the note and Egan, evidently through an oversight, failed to surrender it.

Had Criminal Record.

Doering was sentenced to serve three years for highway robbery in St. Louis in 1910. He served this sentence less time off for good behavior. In 1914 he was sentenced to serve one year in the workhouse on two counts for picking pockets. Sept. 16, 1915, he was arrested after being chased from 1232 Walton avenue, where a robbery had been committed. For this he was convicted Jan. 3, 1916, and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for burglary and larceny charge. He was serving this sentence when paroled by Gov. Gardner May 1, 1918.

Doering was in charge of the Egan saloon the night that Egan was killed there, although the police were informed that at that time the saloon was being run by a man named Blake.

Doering was arrested June 7, 1919, in connection with the theft of $6000 worth of jewelry from Mr. and Mrs. Louis Grolnick, who were held up in their automobile as they were entering the driveway of their home, 5568 Washington. One of the robbers dropped a hat which detectives learned resembled one worn by Doering. When Mrs. Grolnick saw Doering, after his arrest, she stated that she recognized him. "Those eyes, I could never forget them. That man was one of the robbers." Later the identification was withdrawn, it being said that Mrs. Grolnick was not certain, and the prosecution was dropped.

SILK-HATTED ROBBERS HOLD UP NEW YORK CAFE; GET $10,000

Take Money From Proprietor, Cover Customers With Revolvers, Escape in Auto.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Silk-hatted robbers made their appearance last night in New York's society of crime. Four of them walked into a Suffolk street cafe, held up Max Schnur at the point of revolvers and robbed him of $10,000. Then, covering the other customers of the place with their guns and threatening to shoot any who followed, they backed out of the door. The robbers escaped in an automobile. Schnur received the money taken from him in payment for a cafe he had sold.

SAYS SMALL SHOPS SIGN UP

Joseph J. Streib, business agent of Boilermakers and Helpers' Local No. 27, told the Post-Dispatch today that a statement in yesterday's paper that the smaller boiler shops of the city were on the open shop basis, was incorrect, as 11 of the small shops, he said, had signed up, recognizing the union and paying the union scale.

A strike which had lasted five months was called off Oct. 24, he said, and the nine larger plants were on the open shop basis. The small shops, he said, employed about 100 of the 550 members of the union. The men employed at the small shops two weeks ago voted to accept a 10 per cent reduction in wages.

DESTROYER MAY BE SENT TO RETURN MORSE TO COUNTRY

Financier, Reported to Have Sailed on Steamer Paris, Is Wanted for Grand Jury Investigation.

SHIP OFFICER TELLS OF ADDRESSING HIM

Publicity Director Says He Is in Stateroom of French Liner Taken Under the Name of C. Morris.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The Justice Department was understood today to have asked the Navy Department to send a destroyer to intercept the French liner Paris and bring back Charles W. Morse of New York, who is reported to have left the country in the face of a grand jury investigation of his ship contracts.

It was understood that a naval destroyer will put to sea from a French port within a few hours to intercept the Paris, which left New York last Friday.

While neither Attorney-General Daugherty's publicity director, nor the Justice Department's publicity director, would discuss the reported departure, it was learned that every agency of the Government would be used in effecting his return to this country. The Justice Department's request for assistance from the Navy Department was understood to be on the theory that the legal questions involved in the return of Morse would be threshed out when he was brought back.

Liner May Be Notified.

Immediately upon receipt of the report that Morse had left the country, the department was understood to have wired the liner Paris to hold Morse for return to America.

Cannava of the various departments of the Government showed that several had been aroused by the reports that Morse had left the country.

In one official quarter the suggestion was made that perhaps the shipbuilder sail under a passport limit of one year on such papers not having expired.

The Navy Department, up to noon, according to its officials, had not received the request to dispatch a destroyer. There was evidence, however, that several of the Cabinet officers had been in communication since the sailing of Morse first was reported last night.

MORSE'S PRESENCE ON LINER ADMITTED BY SHIP'S DIRECTOR.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Joseph Bourgeois, publicity director of the French liner, today confirmed reports that Charles W. Morse, whose shipping contracts are said to be under investigation by Federal authorities, sailed for Havre, France, last Friday on the liner Paris. He said he was at the gangway of the steamer and personally examined the passports which had been issued to Morse.

Bourgeois said that as he had not seen the name "C. W. Morse" on the passenger list, he asked Morse if he was not "C. W. Morse, the shipping man." Morse replied, "Yes, yes," according to Bourgeois. He said Morse occupied stateroom No. 239, which had been made out to "C. Morris."

Members of Morse's family here would neither confirm nor deny the report that he had sailed. They said they believed he was either at Washington or New London, Conn.

"TOO MANY" JOBS FOR GROTHE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 1.—Frank Middleton, State Game and Fish Commissioner, at the suggestion of Gov. Hyde, has written to John Grothe, his deputy at St. Charles, intimating that Grothe should drop a few of his jobs in order to have more time for enforcing the game and fish conservation laws.

Grothe is Acting Sheriff, Deputy Sheriff, Jailor, Public Welfare Officer and Deputy Game and Fish Commissioner. Middleton said Grothe has been charging only for the time actually devoted to the duties of Game and Fish Warden, but that it was important that more attention be given that department.

DECREASE SHOWN IN HOMICIDES IN U. S. DURING 1920

Insurance Report Classes Rochester as Safest of 31 Cities.—St. Louis Seventh.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Homicides in the United States during 1920 totaled approximately 5000, a decrease of 500 from the 1919 record, according to a computation by Frederick L. Hoffman, third vice president and statistician of the Prudential Life Insurance Company of America.

The figures, made public last night through the Spectator, showed Memphis, Tenn., still in the lead, with a killing record of 63.4 persons for every 100,000 of population. The safest of 31 cities for which figures were tabulated was Rochester, N. Y., where the rate was only 1.3 for every 100,000.

In general, the tables show that southern states, with large negro populations, had the highest homicide rate, and that the proportion of negroes slain was from three and a half to seven times that of whites. Average was slightly in excess of four to one.

Tabulations for the period 1915-1919, grouped geographically, showed the New England states to be most law-abiding so far as homicide was concerned, with a rate of 2.4 for each 100,000. The southern group had the highest rate, 10.8. In the Middle Atlantic states the rate was 15.1; central states, 9.4; and Pacific Coast states 9.2.

Of the larger cities, Boston had the lowest rate, 5.1. New York was second, with 5.9. The Chicago rate was 10.5; San Francisco, 7.6; Philadelphia, 6.2; St. Louis, 12.6; and Cleveland, 12.5.

MOVE AGAINST 'THEATER COUGHS'

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—Paris actors have decided to organize a campaign against the "theater cough." Coughs, they say, have a habit of occurring at dramatic moments in the plays and spoiling the effects intended by the playwrights.

There is little cause for 75 per cent of the "theater coughs," according to French specialists, who say a moment's concentration when the cough is felt to be coming on will usually prevent it.

PACK OF WOLVES ON ISLAND

George Bailey, a farmer near West Alton, St. Charles County, was in St. Charles yesterday to claim a $100 bounty on a large gray timber wolf he shot Tuesday on Icausier Island in the Mississippi River.

Bailey said the wolf was one of a pack that has been seen on the island, which is thickly covered with timber and underbrush.

The wolf pack brought in by Bailey brings the total number of wolves for which bounty claims have been paid by County Clerk Sanford in the last month to 10.

STATE BAR ASSOCIATION IN SESSION AT KANSAS CITY

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 1.—The Missouri State Bar Association opened a two-day annual session here today with an address of welcome by Governor W. W. Woodward, president of the Kansas City Bar Association, and the annual address of Francis M. Currier of St. Louis, president of the association.

Currier outlined the failure of a number of measures sponsored by the bar association to become laws at the last regular session of the Missouri Legislature. A number of these measures, he said, were designed to simplify court procedure in Missouri courts and expedite justice, and they failed of passage, he declared, largely because he was not sufficiently interested in them to press for their passage.

The convention adjourned after the morning session to spend an afternoon playing golf, and tonight will listen to an address by Judge Henry Green of Urbana, Ill., a member of the Constitutional Convention Committee of Illinois. The Committee of Constitutional Revision in Missouri appointed by the bar association at its last annual meeting will offer a report.

After a business session tomorrow the association will end its session at a banquet, at which R. V. Fletcher of Chicago, Ill., chief counsel for the Illinois Central Railroad, and James Hamilton Lewis, former United States Senator from Illinois, will speak.

LANDRU SMILES WHEN SENTENCED TO BE GUILLOTINED

"The Bluebeard of Gambais" Refuses to Ask That Sentence Be Commuted to Life Imprisonment.

SAYS HE SEEKS JUSTICE, NOT MERCY

Conviction Was for Killing Ten Women and Boy and Burning Bodies in Stove
With Robbery as Motive.

By the Associated Press.

VERSAILLES, Dec. 1.—Henri Landru, "the Bluebeard of Gambais," smiled last night for the first time since his trial opened. A flickering expression of amusement crossed his face as he listened to the words of Judge Gilbert sending him to the guillotine for a series of the most heinous crimes in the history of French jurisprudence.

"Thank you, gentlemen," said Landru, flourishing his weather-beaten hat in a mocking bow to the jury, and he disappeared through the little door leading to the Versailles jail.

While the verdict was awaited, the convicted slayer of 10 women and a boy spoke words of encouragement to his counsel, M. Moro-Giafferi, who, tired and worn out after his strenuous efforts to save his client from death, was on the verge of collapse. "Strange it is that a man standing in the shadow of death should console his defender," Landru remarked at one time to those sitting nearby. He refused to be a party to a petition asking President Millerand to commute the sentence to life imprisonment, which was signed, among others, by the jurors.

Refuses to Ask for Mercy.
"I refuse to ask for mercy," he told the latter. "A man like me wants justice, not mercy. You think I am guilty; then let me die."

His remarks after reaching the cell were also characteristic of this strange character, the record of whose deeds as unfolded in the daily Versailles courtroom has drawn the attention of all France and of thousands of persons in other countries. "It has been a great show," he said, "I hope the public is satisfied. I give you a rendezvous for the end of February or the beginning of March to show you how an innocent man dies."

The last hours of the trial saw one of the greatest crowds at and around the courtroom ever seen in Versailles. Pickpockets began operations in the press of the gathering while the jury was out and three men complained that their wallets had been taken.

"If the trial lasted another day I would be unable to find a seat myself," Landru told the gendarmes as he surveyed the throngs struggling to enter after the recess.

Burned Victims' Bodies.
Landru lured his women victims by promises of marriage. After taking them to his villa at Gambais, the prosecution charged that he killed them and disposed of bodies by burning them in a small stove after first cutting them into small pieces and crushing the skulls. The stove was one of the principal exhibits of the trial.

The motive ascribed to Landru was that of robbery, various entries in a notebook being cited to prove that he kept account of the amounts derived from each crime. The victims were mostly married women with small properties who had been separated from their husbands. The evidence was principally circumstantial, the only direct testimony being about a pound and a half of bones, some of the fragments of which were so small that they had to be viewed under microscopes.

Guilt on All Charges.
To all the 48 questions which the court submitted to the jury on the questions of guilt, innocence or mental capacity of the prisoner there was a verdict of guilty or premeditated murder. No extenuating circumstances were included in this verdict.

Landru had borne himself throughout the lengthy trial without showing the slightest weakness, and he heard the sentence of death imposed upon him without emotion. The jury required three hours, including a brief respite for dinner, to prepare its replies to the 48 questions the court submitted to it.

M. Moro-Giafferi, counsel for the defense, in an eloquent plea, finished his summing up, after which Judge Gilbert read the 48 questions to the jury. The first of these was whether Landru was guilty of murder with premeditation in the case of Mme. Cochet.

M. Moro-Giafferi in his address cast doubt on all the evidence produced by the prosecution. He reminded the jury that a person could be proclaimed legally dead only when they had been missing 30 years. In support of his client he cited cases of persons who were missing having returned years afterwards, when hope for them had been abandoned. He also referred to notable cases of alleged miscarriages of justice based on circumstantial evidence.

White Slavery Admitted.
"A white slaver, yes; an assassin,

Lady Decies, Daughter of Late Mrs. Gould, Arrives to Visit Father

—Keystone Photograph.

The former Miss Vivian Gould was too far away when notified of the sudden death of her mother, Mrs. George J. Gould, to come to the funeral, but she has just arrived from England on the first available steamer to console her father.

never," exclaimed M. Moro-Giafferi, pointing toward Landru. He added that the possession by the prisoner of papers identifying his alleged victims corroborated the theory that Landru probably had sent the women abroad with false papers in "white slave" traffic.

"These women all are alive," said M. Moro-Giafferi, referring to the 10 women Landru was charged with killing, "but they are ashamed to make their whereabouts known. Make a thorough search of the United States and Brazil, Argentina, and other South American countries, and I am confident you will find Landru's so-called victims."

Arrested in April, 1919.
Landru was arrested in April, 1919, and had spent his time for the past two and a half years in answering or evading questions of the police, the investigating magistrate and other court officials, as to the fate of his 11 fiances. He proved a most stubborn as well as a very clever prisoner and the police admitted that their case against him was not as strong as they would have liked it to be.

The so-called Bluebeard rented a small villa at Gambais, a few miles from Paris, and it is there that the police charged he did away with the 11 women, all trace of whom had been absolutely lost.

It was alleged that he advertised in various matrimonial agency papers and chose from the letters received those signed by women with a little property and no near relatives.

A short courtship would follow, then a journey to the Gambais villa, in the company of the fiancée. The accusation said that Landru always returned alone.

Few Bones Were Found.
The police claimed to have proof that women were seen to enter the villa, but none was heard of afterward. A few weeks later whatever bonds, stocks, furniture, jewelry the women possessed would be sold.

The villa at Gambais had been searched, ransacked, practically demolished by the police in an effort to find the remains of the missing women. A few bones were found, some hair, but not enough to form a "corpus delicti." "Rabbit and nut-ton bones," said Landru. "Why don't you bring your former fiancées forward?" asked the Judge.

"How can I when you keep me in jail for years?" countered Landru. "If you and your hundreds of detectives cannot locate them, how can I?"

A dark-visaged man, with shining bald head and long black whiskers, Landru became a familiar figure by impersonations on the stage. He was already under sentence of five years' imprisonment for forgery growing out of one of the cases, where murder was also charged.

MORE HORSES IN COUNTRY NOW THAN EVER, HORSEMEN ARE TOLD

Higher Prices Predicted for 1924-25
—St. Louis Man Elected Director.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—There are more horses in the country today than ever, Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse Association of America, yesterday informed the annual convention of the organization. Three-fifths of the 27,000,000 horses and mules in the United States are produced in ten States of the central West, he said. He asserted also that there was a growing shortage of young steeds and because of this horses will bring high prices in 1924 and 1925.

Horses, it was asserted, lower the farmer's cost of production and, for this reason, horse breeding has been stimulated.

Directors elected include J. J. Seary of St. Louis.

JAPANESE LINK FORTIFICATIONS WITH NAVY RATIO

Conclusion Being Reached

Island Base Agreement.

JAPAN SENTIMENTAL
OVER THE "MUTSU"

But That Affection for Warship Is Counterbalanced by Our Fondness for $330,000,000 in Ships
Building.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
A Special Washington Correspondent
of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—What's behind the Japanese reluctance to accept the American figures fixing the ratio of present naval strength on a basis of five for great Britain, five for the United States and three for Japan?

The correspondent has had an opportunity to examine the official correspondence passing between Japan and the United States in the secret sessions wherein the American navy explains in detail the method by which the 5-5-3 ratio was fixed. It is an open and shut case. The formula used takes account first of the Japanese estimate of her own strength based upon the tonnage figures she herself furnished, and also takes into account every contention made by the Japanese and works out finally to a 5-5-3 ratio every time. It is a plain piece of arithmetic and the quandary of all who have had a chance to learn how the American program was worked out is what possible objection the Japanese have to its acceptance.

The conclusion being generally reached, partly from things the Japanese themselves are saying and partly from the hints they let fall in the secret sessions, is that the Japanese are getting ready to agree absolutely to the American estimate of existing naval strength but are planning to insist to conditions their acceptance upon another agreement with respect to fortifications and naval bases in the Pacific. This question has heretofore not been raised by the Japanese in the official conferences though in the meetings with the press the Japanese delegates have emphasized the importance of fortifications.

America and Fortifications.
The American delegation doesn't fear the introduction of the fortification problem, though of course it will hardly wish to explore that controversial field until a definite understanding has been reached on the basis of the original Hughes program concerning limitation and reduction of vessels afloat as well as under construction.

When fortifications are considered, the view of the American delegation will be found to be most generous. The Japanese cannot contend that the bases of the United States in the Pacific are of any value, American naval experts say, if the Hughes program of reduced strength goes into effect. What the Japanese really want is a promise that the United States will not build up her present fortifications or add new bases. This pledge probably would be forthcoming if reciprocated by the Japanese.

Naval bases bear a distinct relationship to naval strength if they are sufficiently near the scene of possible naval operations. If the United States were to conduct an offensive war against Japan, the naval base at Cavite, in the Philippines, would have to be much more effective, it is contended by the American experts, than it is at present, and the very fact that it has not been reinforced, the Americans contend, is proof of the pacific intention of the United States. The fortification of Guam, however, is considered by America as more of a defense of Hawaii than an outpost for offense, though, to be sure, the American view is that the Japanese themselves know how little value are the present facilities at Guam.

The trouble is the Japanese have not yet made clear what it is they do want if they agree, as seems inevitable, to the 5-5-3 ratio. The American delegates have explained, of course, that the Japanese are not eager to take into account vessels under construction. Of course, if these are eliminated, the 5-5-3 ratio would be disturbed, but the American contention is that a vessel on which money has been spent is to that extent a part of that country's "existing naval strength."

Japanese Contentions.
First the Japanese contended that pre-dreadnoughts need not be excluded even though more than 20 years old. America's experts included them and still came to a 5-5-3 result. The representatives of the United States went still further and included the "Mutsu" in the Japanese estimate of her own strength as a partly completed vessel and still reached a 5-5-3 conclusion. The Japanese for sentimental reasons want to keep the "Mutsu," as she is 98 per cent complete, but the United States has a battleship of similar strength also nearly completed and the original proposal to scrap everything under construction still stands.

Secretary Hughes is arguing that if once the principle is violated, the whole structure of the American proposals is broken down. He insists that the vessels under construction must be counted in any ratios an armistice be scrapped. The United States has spent $330,000,000 already on ships in the process of building, and the American delegation has told the Japanese that the public opinion of this country would not countenance the loss of such a large sum of money unless Japan was willing also to scrap everything she was building. In other words, the sentimental fondness of the Japanese for the "Mutsu" is largely counterbalanced by a sentimental fondness for the $330,000,000 already spent by America.

The big issue is slowly emerging, however. It is not the quarrel over ratios of existing strength, but fortifications and collateral matters on which the Japanese are not eager to agree at once. The attitude of the conference does not indicate hopelessness, but confidence, that the differences which have appeared will soon be resolved.

snow-bound farmhouse the members need not lack entertainment, for the air is full of music, short stories and gossip, free to everyone prepared to receive it.

Thousands of amateur wireless operators, experts say, are listening nightly to grand opera, bedtime stories, phonograph and ball concert, crop and weather reports and aerial gossip. Any wireless telegraph set can, without additional equipment, pick up the radiophone messages and concerts.

With the institution of wireless grand opera by Mary Garden, director-general of the Chicago Opera Company, three hours' entertainment is furnished five nights a week. Three Broadcasting Stations.

Telephone transmitters over the stage at the Auditorium theater pick up the opera and transmit it over ordinary land wires to a wireless station on the roof of a skyscraper several blocks away, and from there it is sent out, broadcast to any one with the proper equipment to receive it. The company operating the station maintains three other broadcasting plants, one at Pittsburg, Pa., one at Newark, N. J., and one at Springfield, Mass. The program of the Pittsburg plant is typical of the others.

Early in the evening a bedtime story is read by the sending operator. The stories generally consume about 15 minutes' time. Next the weather and crop reports are announced, followed by a phonograph or band concert. This is the weekly schedule. On Sunday nights a specially prepared church sermon is sent.

As all the stations operate on different lengths, the amateur stations can listen to all, one after another, by turning a small dial on their receiving sets.

Synopsis of Opera Given.
The Chicago Opera service is the most ambitious program of all. At 7:30 o'clock, as the audience begins gathering at the Auditorium, the instruments are tested with a phonograph concert. A few minutes before 8 o'clock the "sender" announces the opera for the evening, the principal singers, the conductor, and then gives a brief synopsis of the first act, explaining the stage effects and scenery. At the end of each act a similar synopsis of the next scene is transmitted.

In the first test, when Samson and Delilah was sung, amateur stations not only heard the orchestra and singers, but the clanking of the chains as Lucien Muratore, as Samson, paced his prison cell, and the storms of applause that marked each curtain call. The sounds were so clear that amplifying devices were unnecessary, ordinary receivers lying on the table at the receiving points spreading the music throughout the room.

LETTERS LEFT BY WHITLESEY MAY SHOW MOTIVE FOR DEATH

By the Associated Press.
HAVANA, Dec. 1.—What compelling motive sent Lieutenant Colonel Charles W. Whittlesey, commander of the "Lost Battalion," overboard into the sea only a few hours out from New York last Saturday night, may be revealed in letters to members of his family and business associates, which he left for Capt. Grant of the steamer Tolosa, to deliver.

Nine of these letters were in the Captain's possession when the Tolosa docked last night. Capt. Grant also received a note from Col. Whittlesey, which he declared he regarded as confidential.

"I can say, however, that from all appearances, the act was premeditated," Capt. Grant declared, "and that Col. Whittlesey leaped overboard either just before or just after midnight Saturday."

Various wireless messages were left by Col. Whittlesey for transmission, but these were not forwarded, and, except in case of one of the messages, their nature was not disclosed. This particular message said that he would be missing.

None of the letters which Col. Whittlesey left on his berth were on the writing paper of the steamship company, nor were any of them dated, which led to the belief that they were written before embarking on the Tolosa.

"I learned just before we sailed last Saturday morning that Col. Whittlesey was aboard," said Capt. Grant, "but I did not see him until dinner that night. He sat at my table and appeared quite normal. The first intimation I had that he had disappeared was Monday morning. It appears that he had struck up an acquaintance with A. Maloret, another passenger, and conversed with him in the smoking room until 11:15 Saturday night, when he left suddenly, saying he would retire. He was not seen afterward."

FAILS TO GET REVOLVER BACK

David Grant of 709 Biddle street wants his revolver. The police took it from him Oct. 20, when he was arrested on a charge of discharging firearms on his premises. The case was dismissed in police court, but the revolver was not returned, and Grant's lawyer, Charles P. Comer, says he has learned that it is in possession of the sheriff's office, being held with a view to a possible review of the case by the Circuit Attorney's office.

The lawyer has written a letter to the Sheriff, the Chief of Police and the Police Board, threatening legal action if the revolver, valued at $30, is not restored.

EX-CONVICT OUT ON BONDS OF $45,000

Charles Vance Furnishes New $25,000 Security, Purposely Made High.

Although his bond was purposely fixed at an extraordinarily high amount, Charles Vance, three-time ex-convict and one of the four St. Louis police characters, indicted Tuesday on a charge of first-degree robbery in connection with the hold-up last Saturday of the St. Louis Refining Co.'s store, 1005 Pine street, in which the firm reported jewelry valued at $50,000 taken, furnished a $25,000 bond at noon today in Circuit Judge Hall's court.

Vance is now out on bonds totaling $45,000, to answer indictments in connection with three crimes. He was released Jan. 4 in Judge Hall's court on a $10,000 bond in connection with a burglary at the store of the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., and only a few months ago furnished a $10,000 bond in St. Louis County following his indictment in connection with the holdup of the Pine Lawn Bank.

Vance's $25,000 bond was signed by Frank Weeke, butcher, of 2221 Benton street, a brother of "Hank" Weeke, former Commissioner of Weights and Measures, who qualified as owning unincumbered property valued at $35,000, and George J. Dopnick, proprietor of a soft drink saloon at 1300 South Seventh street, who qualified as owning $40,000 worth of property. Weeke and his brother, August Weeke, a Deputy Circuit Clerk, are on Vance's $10,000 bond in connection with the Ely & Walker burglary.

Circuit Attorney Sidener, in recommending that Vance's bond be not less than $25,000, said that he was making that amount the minimum in the hope that Vance would be unable to furnish it. "Vance is too dangerous to be on the streets," said Sidener. "If his attorney thinks the bond is too high he can appeal to the Supreme Court."

Sigmund Bass, counsel for Vance, did think the bond too high and so expressed himself to several Circuit Judges, who refused to reduce the amount fixed by the Circuit Attorney, but instead of appealing to the Supreme Court, Bass induced Dominick and Weeke to sign the bond.

Vance, who has served two terms in the penitentiary for burglary and another penitentiary sentence for arson, has never had any difficulty in obtaining bond, although he has been arrested frequently. It will be recalled that Dominick charged George V. Halliday, bankrupt stock broker, $1000 for signing a $14,000 bond when Halliday was arrested on indictments charging embezzlement.

EVIDENCE FOUND MISS RAPPE HAD CHRONIC AILMENT

Medical Commission Reports in Arbuckle Trial—Signs of Presence of Rupture of Bladder Found.

DEFENSE BORNE OUT,
COUNSEL DECLARES

Doctor, Who Makes Report, Is Called for Further Examination—Arguments in Case to Be Brief.

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—A special medical commission's report that the bladder of Miss Virginia Rappe showed evidence of chronic inflammation and the presence of rupture was submitted today in the trial of Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle, who is charged with manslaughter in connection with Miss Rappe's death.

The commission was named by the court and counsel for both sides.
The report was read by Dr. William Ophule, who was named on the commission by the prosecution, and who performed a post-mortem examination on Miss Rappe's body.

The report "absolutely corroborates" the deposition of Dr. Maurice Rosenburg of Chicago, who treated Miss Rappe supposedly for a bladder disorder in 1912, according to defense counsel.

Contention of Defense.
The defense contended that the bladder rupture which caused Miss Rappe's death was the climax of a chronic condition and not caused by external force applied by Arbuckle, as the prosecution alleged.

The prosecution was granted the privilege of examining the report.
"I don't understand the report,"
District Attorney Matthew Brady said. The prosecution summoned Dr. Ophule to take the stand at 2 p. m. and explain the report in detail.

The prosecution announced that it would close finally with Dr. Ophule's explanation and that Leo Friedman, Assistant District Attorney, would then make the first closing argument.

Gavin McNab, defense counsel, announced he would make the only argument for the defense and expected to conclude it today.
"I expect to take less than two hours," he said. Each side was given four hours.

Doctor Testified Yesterday in Rebuttal of Defense Claim.

A leading witness yesterday was Dr. Rufus L. Rigdon of San Francisco, who was called to rebut defense evidence that bladder injuries of the sort which resulted in the death of Miss Rappe could be caused by agencies other than external force. Dr. Rigdon testified that he knew of no case where such injury was purely internal or spontaneous in character.

Even a bladder, which became gradually over distended would not rupture, he said, as other organs would be affected before such a rupture occurred.

Mrs. L. G. Cory, an attendant at a hot springs near Los Angeles, said to have been visited by Miss Virginia Rappe, whose death formed the basis of the trial, testified to having seen Miss Rappe at the springs. Her testimony was in answer to testimony by Mrs. Mary Pullin, hostess at the springs, that there was no record of Miss Rappe's alleged visit to the resort.

To Investigate Testimony.
The prosecution announced that it had the testimony of Mrs. Irene Morgan, a British war nurse and defense witness, under close examination to determine on its accuracy, but that no charge was contemplated.

Arbuckle displayed relief yesterday. He smiled widely at adjournment and seemed to take the day's developments as being favorable to him.

BOMB EXPLOSION IN JAPAN
ENDANGERS FORMER PREMIER

Wealthy Baron Narrowly Escapes in Another Plot—Much Uncertainty Created.

TOKIO, Dec. 1.—Two recent explosions, both believed to have been the result of radical plots, and other radical manifestations are creating much uneasiness here.

It is thought former Premier Satomi was the intended victim of an explosion Tuesday. Just before the train on which he was coming into Tokyo arrived in the station a bomb exploded near by. So far the police have been unable to place responsibility for the explosion.

Following publication of this incident, it was learned that an attempt was made to bomb Baron Su-tomi, a multimillionaire, at the gate of his country villa. The bomb missed the automobile in which the baron was riding, but struck a ped-estrian's cart just behind, blowing it to pieces.

As a result of these occurrences, the police are rounding up many radical suspects. Among those so far arrested is a Russian-born British subject, Boris Gray, recently arrived from Shanghai. He is accused of distributing soviet funds here.

Author Tells What Law Regulating Trading in Grain Will Accomplish

Senator Capper Declares Board of Trade,
Under Measure, Must Eliminate Man Who Manipulates Grain Prices.

Following is the third article in the series, which is appearing in the Post-Dispatch, containing statements by authors of laws enacted at the recent special session of Congress on the operation of and results designed to be accomplished by the measures.

In the statement appearing today,
given to the Post-Dispatch at Washington, Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas discusses the grain exchange regulation law of which he is the author.

By ARTHUR CAPPER,
U. S. Senator From Kansas.

"WHEN wheat and corn were on the market last year, a bear raid began which lasted 10 months and forced the price of wheat from $2.75 a bushel down to 85 cents. Yet all the time there was a greater demand for American wheat than ever before.
The anti-grain gambling law is designed to make it possible for the law of supply and demand to operate and to stabilize the market for grain. It will put an end to the following evils of the present system:

Market manipulation by big traders; dissemination of false

SENATOR CAPPER.

crop information; gambling in indemnities, or "puts" and "calls,"

and promiscuous speculation in foodstuffs. It provides for Government regulation of the grain exchange, with the Secretary of Agriculture as regulator.

Books must be kept, showing accurately all the transactions on the exchanges, to which the secretary or his agents may have access at all times. The Secretary of Agriculture may designate such books of trades as "contract markets" with the provision that a grain futures may be dealt in only when in compliance with conditions set forth by the law.

Gambling Taxed Out of Business.
It uses the taxing power of the Government to put the gambling in grain out of business, by imposing a tax of 20 cents per bushel on every bushel for future delivery, except where the seller is, at the time of making the contract, the owner of the actual grain, or is the grower, and except where such contracts are made by or through a member of the board of trade which has been designated as a contract market. A commission composed of the Secretary of Commerce and the Attorney-General is created to administer the provisions of the bill.

"This law will correct some of the evil practices of the professional speculators on the grain exchanges and authorize supervision of the grain futures market, but not disturb any of their legiti-mate and useful functions. It will not put any curb upon free and unlimited hedging by elevator companies, exporters, millers, and other manufacturers of grain products.

"For many years there have been complaints of false crop reports.
A report will go out to grain trade that a bountiful rain has assured a tremendous crop in Kansas. The report will be, in fact, untrue.
These became so frequent in 1920,
when the great decline in prices occurred that I caused a number of these complaints to be investigated. In nearly every instance the source of such false information was found to be an operator on the 'bear' side of the market.

Reports will come out today and be contradicted tomorrow. Certainly, no harm can come from a requirement that some supervision over reports of crop conditions shall be had to the end that truth and not falsehoods shall be scattered broadcast.

What Must Be Eliminated.
"As conducted the last 10 years, the Chicago Board of Trade is the most wanton and the most destructive game of chance in the world.
The new law is a legislative mandate to these exchanges, that if they wish to continue to deal in futures without restriction or regulation, they must eliminate from the midst the man who thrives upon the losses of the gamblers in foodstuffs; they must suppress the man who profits by the circulation of falsehoods affecting the price of wheat and bread; and they must drive from their midst the man who is prostituting the machinery of the grain market for his own selfish purpose by manipulating the price to his own advantage.
The law is constructive legislation, legislation that has been sorely needed for more than a quarter of a century.

MANUFACTURERS' RAILWAY FRANCHISE REQUEST TAKEN UP

The Public Utilities Committee of the Board of Aldermen yesterday considered the application of the Manufacturers' Railway Co. for a franchise on Second street from Plum to Walnut streets and for the waiving of penalties aggregating $80,000 under its old franchise.
The old franchise, granted in 1905, provided that, beginning three years thereafter, the company would begin paying the city $5000 a year for the privilege of laying tracks on Second street, and 12 years after the grant the company would begin paying the city $10,000 a year. These payments have never been made and the delinquency is $60,000 for the period from 1908 to 1918, and $50,- 000 from 1918 to 1921.

President Cotto of the railway company told the committee three weeks ago that the company did not owe the money because of a clause in the franchise exempting it from payment if it was prevented by causes beyond its control from completing the road. Director of Public Utilities Hooke was asked yesterday by the committee if this was so. He said it was a legal question. City Counselor Caulfield will be asked for an opinion.

Hooke suggested that the committee, before proceeding, have a public hearing to ascertain the wishes of property owners and shippers on Second street. Adam Reis, chairman of the committee, said this would be done. The company's line now ends at Second and Poplar streets.

Candy Firm Brought by A. S.
Herz and Wife.

The receivership suit and petition for an accounting and suspension of officers, brought by two stockholders against the Busy Bee Candy Co., which has three stores in St. Louis, was dismissed yesterday by Circuit Judge Franklin Miller after a four-day trial. The judge stated that the evidence did not warrant granting the relief prayed for.

The plaintiffs were A. S. Herz and his wife, Lily Herz, who conduct the Hers-Oakes Candy Co., and who own 25 shares of Busy Bee stock. Herz having been formerly employed by that company. Their principal complaint was against Walter W. Candy, president of the Busy Bee, owner of 1000 of the 1500 shares of capital stock. They charged that excessive salaries had been paid to officers and that other transactions were permitted which were detrimental to the minority stockholders. The defense denied the allegations and introduced evidence showing that from the time of the incorporation of the concern in 1902 substantial dividends have been paid. Sometimes the dividends were as high as 200 per cent on the original capital stock, which was $10,000. Since the capital stock was increased to $150,000, dividends in some years have been as high as 70 per cent.

James C. Jones, attorney for the Busy Bee, argued to the court that the plaintiffs were seeking to force Candy to purchase their stock at an exorbitant figure, and that this was the main purpose of the suit. He asserted that their beneficial interest in the total amount for which they demanded an accounting to the company was not over 50 cents. Attorney Wilbur B. Jones, representing the petitioners, denied the statements of opposing counsel. After the decision he announced that an appeal would be taken.

CENTRAL COUNCIL OF SOCIAL AGENCIES CHANGES ITS NAME

Becomes the Community Council and Adopts New Constitution and By-Laws.

The Central Council of Social Agencies, at a meeting yesterday afternoon, changed its name to Community Council. A new constitution and new by-laws were adopted, providing for revision of membership and a more democratic form of electing officers. The organization represents 78 charitable and philanthropic associations. Barna Hospital was admitted to membership yesterday.

The purpose of the council is "to assist in relieving and extirpating dependency, disease, defectiveness and delinquency and such social conditions as tend to cause them, by promoting co-operation among social agencies, public and private." Elwood Street is director.

Every social agency that is a member is entitled to two representatives. Departments will take the place of standing committees. The council will meet on the fourth Tuesday in September, November, January, March and May.

INK WELLS FLY IN FIGHT

Clubs Also Used With Effect in Council Meeting at Rome.

SOME, Dec. 1.—Ink wells, clubs and articles of furniture furnished weapons for a conflict Tuesday night between groups of Fascist and Socialist at a provincial council meeting, convened to honor seven Roman citizens who were killed in the recent disorders between the Fascist and Railway workers. Eulogistic speeches by the Socialist members provoked the ire of the Fascist, and general disorder ensued. Ink wells were thrown with telling effect, wounding four men, who streamed a mixture of blood and ink.

Order was restored when the royal guards entered the building and dispersed the combatants.

4 LUMBER FIRMS NAMED IN SHORT MEASURE CHARGES

Witness Tells of Practices of Concerns Previous to Organization of St. Louis Trade Exchange.

CONDITIONS BETTER NOW, HE STATES

W. H. Putnam Also Testifies Contractors Pooled Their Interests for Protection and Opened Yard in 1911.

Testifying for the defense today in the dissolution suit of Attorney-General Barrett against the St. Louis Lumber Trade Exchange, in which price fixing and restriction of competition is charged, William H. Putnam of the W. H. Putnam Lumber Co., said that prior to the formation of the Exchange, in 1917, he had heard of hundreds of transactions in which lumber dealers gave short measure and inferior quality on orders from builders.

When pressed on cross-examination to be specific as to instances and give names of the companies he knew of his own knowledge as having been guilty of these practices, Putnam mentioned transactions in lath and flooring and named the Boeckeler Lumber Co., Gavin Lumber Co., Ganahl Lumber Co., and the E. R. Darlington Lumber Co., the latter company having since gone out of business.

Putnam testified that the St. Louis Lumber Trade Exchange had improved conditions by business methods that did not countenance substitution of grades and short measures, but that previous to the formation of the exchange there had been frequent instances of substitution of inferior grades and short measures.

He recalled one instance that occurred 14 years ago, he said, when a company, the name of which he did not mention, sent 10,000 lath on an order for 12,000, and later, when another company gave 2500 feet of flooring for 2800 feet that had been ordered and paid for as 2800 feet.

Conditions were actually so bad in this respect, he added, that a number of contractors pooled interests and started a lumber yard of their own in 1911, placing Putnam in charge, so that they would get full measure and honest grades.

On cross-examination Putnam said it was the E. R. Darlington Co. that had given the short measure of 2000 lath on the order for 12,000. He said he had not had an opportunity to observe the practices of lumber dealers in the last five or six years, but has heard complaints of short measure and substitution of grades.

In response to direct questions from the prosecution, Putnam said he looked upon those practices as "crooked" and upon the men who practiced them as "crooks."

The witness had been solicited by committees of the St. Louis Trade Exchange to become a member of that body, he said, but added that his stockholders did not want him to join for fear he would become "contaminated."

He said he did not believe it necessary to be a member of the Exchange in order to "run a straight" business, and so informed the membership committee of the exchange. His company, he added, had done a profitable business in eight out of the 10 years of its existence.

Putnam was followed by George L. Walters of the Mound City Lumber Co., who also expressed the opinion that the exchange, of which he is a member, had improved conditions in the lumber trade as to encouraging honest methods. He testified particularly as to the service charge of $5 a thousand feet and 15 per cent of the wholesale price, which is added to the selling price of lumber and which is being attacked by the State as tending to fix prices.

His figures for the year 1920 showed that the average cost of doing business of all lumber yards in St. Louis was $15.62 a thousand feet, while the service charge for that period was $15.09. This, he said, resulted in a loss to the dealers and gain for the public amounting to $43,747.53 on total sales of $2,542,516 feet of lumber.

Cost of Doing Business. From July 1, 1920, to June 30, 1921, he testified, the average cost of doing business for all yards was $15.67 a thousand feet, while the service charge, based on the average cost for 10 of the most efficient yards, was $15.96, entailing a loss to the companies and gain for the public of $49,689.49 on total sales of $1,454,195. He added that his own company this year, to Nov. 1, on aggregate sales of 1,000,000 feet of lumber, had a deficit of 55 cents a thousand feet, or $5500.

On cross-examination Walters testified some companies whose cost of doing business was higher than the fixed service charge lost money through application of the charge, while others, whose costs were lower, actually profited by the charge.

Hiram Lloyd, Lieutenant-Governor of Missouri, and a building contractor in St. Louis for 31 years, testified. He was familiar with conditions in the building industries before the formation of the exchange in 1917, and that he had frequently experienced difficulty with the lumber supply, through short measurement and the substitution of inferior grades. He said conditions in this respect had improved since the exchange was formed.

Records of bids submitted to the city Supply Commissioner, for lumber, by various firms, were introduced by the defense, through a clerk in the supply department, to show that competition existed among the members of the exchange.

Paul W. Brown, editor of "America at Work," a business publication, identified articles prepared and published by him, telling of a survey of 10 large cities, including St. Louis, as to wage conditions in the building industries and building material prices. The showing of this survey, he said, was that lumber had decreased in price more than any other building material except steel, in comparison with wartime peak figures.

The average wage an hour in the building industries, as shown by the survey, Brown said, was 84 cents an hour for Boston, the lowest of the 10 cities, while for St. Louis it was $1.18, the highest in the list.

Witnesses Yesterday Defended Practices of Lumber Exchange.

Contractors and lumber dealers who testified for the defense yesterday were Albert E. Black of the James Black Construction Co.; Stephen J. Gavin of the Gavin Lumber Co.; Charles M. Welsh, a contractor; James Prendergast of the Prendergast Lumber Co.; James A. Godfrey, a contractor; Charles Wehling of the Wehling Lumber Co.; W. L. Wimmer and E. A. Steinger, contractors; W. C. Miehger, president of the Globe Construction Co., and George L. Walters of the Mound City Lumber Co.

All these witnesses said conditions in the trade had been improved since the formation of the Lumber Exchange in 1907, prior to which competition was so keen that substitution of inferior grades by dealers seemed to be the rule, as the only means by which they could come out of deals without actual loss.

Some of them also defended the service charge of $5 a thousand feet and 15 per cent of the wholesale price, which is added to the price of lumber by dealers as being the only means by which they can do business above cost. Attorney-General Barrett has contended that this service charge tends to fix prices in violation of the law.

President to Hear Filipinos. By the Associated Press.

MANILA, Dec. 1.—President Harding will be asked to take no action on recommendations of the Wood-

Forbes mission until representatives of the Filipino people have had an opportunity to be heard, a legislative caucus decided last night. The conclusion and recommendations embodied in the report, which were made public yesterday, were read at the caucus and a decision was reached to submit a resolution setting out the views of the Filipinos to a joint session of the Legislature within a few days. Several speakers criticized the report as unjust to Filipinos.

LENINE RETAINS IDEA OF U. S.-JAPANESE WAR

"There Is Bound to Be Capitalistic War," He Tells Parley P. Christensen.

By the Associated Press.
RIGA, Dec. 1.—Nikolai Lenin, the Russian Premier, clings to the idea, apparently, of trouble between Japan and the United States, according to Parley P. Christensen, who was the Farmer-Labor candidate in the recent presidential election in the United States and who has just arrived here after a month's stay in Moscow, which included two interviews with Lenin.

Lenin sent for Christensen last Saturday and no sooner had the American greeted the Russian Premier than "right off the bat," Christensen related, "Lenin interrupted me, asking: 'What about war between America and Japan?'"

Christensen said he did not think there would be any war, as Japan and America were at peace, but Lenin retorted: "Oh, there is bound to be capitalistic war, for that is the best kind of industry for capitalists and that is the kind of government you have in America. War is bound to come. It is brewing now."

Reference to Conference.
To a question as to his opinion of the Washington conference, Lenin replied: "I don't know what is going to be the outcome, but I fear not much; perhaps some alliance, perhaps an Anglo-American-Japanese alliance."

The Russian Premier quizzed Christensen about Anglo-American relations and seemed surprised when the latter said that the peoples were generally friendly.

Lenin's understanding of English was sufficiently good except when his American visitors used colloquialisms.

"He told me," said Christensen, "that Russia is ready to do business with America, and asked why we weren't."

"I answered: 'Perhaps you are the fit in the climate.'"

"He asked the interpreter what was meant by 'fit in the climate.' When it was explained, he answered: 'Well, I don't want to stand in the way.'"

The Soviet Premier asked why American farmers did not send to Russia wheat in exchange for goods, and when Christensen asked what Russia had, Lenin replied: "We can put furs on your wives."

Lenin firmly established. Christensen said he found the Lenin regime firmly established, despite changes towards capitalism, as the communists are holding the key to the industries, schools and press. He had gone to Russia to investigate trade possibilities in behalf of the Farmer-Labor party, and declared that he was favorably impressed. From Riga, he will proceed to Berlin and thence to Paris.

12-CENT ADVANCE IN EGGS BIGGEST IN FARMER'S MARKET

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 1.—The advance from 34 cents a dozen to 46 cents for eggs, an advance of more than one-third, marked the greatest change in the price of the Missouri farmer's products during the past month, according to the monthly price report of the State Board of Agriculture, just issued here. The price of butter fat showed a slight increase from 36 to 37 cents a pound during November, according to the report, while country butter advanced from 30 cents, the October price, to 32 cents. The price of the farmer's chickens remained the same as last month, at 17 cents per pound.

During the last month, the price of eggs ranged from 35 cents a dozen in Camden, Iron and Pemiscot counties, to 40 cents in Butler County. Butter fat showed a variation of from 22 cents a pound in Camden County to 44 cents in Franklin, country butter, from 16 cents in Ripley County to 50 cents in Barton, Howell and Pike counties. Chickens varied from 10 cents in Bollinger County to 22 cents in Montgomery County.

Lenin he described as having a winning personality, intensely human and appreciative of humor. "I snatched him on the back, just like an American farmer," said Christensen.

tered with the bureau, and 90 were placed in jobs.
The Red Cross Bureau is continuing the work of the Veterans' Free Employment Bureau, in the Chamber of Commerce Building, which was closed recently. Martin J. Walsh, manager of the Red Cross bureau, says that since the closing of the other bureau there has been a falling off in the number of requests from employers, and that there seems to be a belief that most of the former service men have been placed in jobs. This is a mistake, he says, and he asks that employers telephone to the Red Cross bureau, Olive 7300 or Central 6900.

POLICEMEN IN TRACING ODOR OF SEWER GAS FIND STILL

Liquor Plant in Operation at 2814 North Taylor Seized, 2000 Gallons of Mash Destroyed.

Attempting to trace the source of escaping sewer gas in the vicinity of the Physicians and Surgeons' Hospital, Taylor and Maffitt avenues, yesterday afternoon, Sergeant Henry and a detail of police entered the home of an Italian at 2814 North Taylor avenue, a few doors from the hospital, and reported finding in the basement an elaborate still and mash cooking vessels in operation over a coke fire. A concrete vat estimated to contain about 2000 gallons of mash was near the still, they reported.

A still in operation and 11 50-gallon barrels of mash were found in the attic of the home of Tony Beon of 1904 South Third street, a butcher, by policemen investigating odors in the neighborhood. Beon was arrested.

PROMISES TO SELL ST. LOUIS TO ST. LOUISANS AND THE WORLD

New Head of Chamber of Commerce Says Citizen "Who Lives on the City" Won't Be Tolerated.

F. W. A. Vesper, president of the Chamber of Commerce, in his inaugural address, a membership luncheon of the chamber in the Hotel Statler yesterday, said he had no promises to make for his term, except that he would endeavor to sell St. Louis to St. Louisans and to the outside world.

"It is time to drop the 'but' from the phrase too often heard, 'St. Louis is all right, but'—Vesper said. "There is a difference between the citizen who lives in the city and the citizen who lives on the city. We will no longer tolerate the citizen who lives on the city. He must be told to live in the city or find some other city to live on."

"A city is either good or bad. If it is bad, then a citizenry which cannot correct the faults is a bad citizenry. No man has the right to criticize his city unless he gets into harness to correct the thing of which he complains."

Vesper said he also intended to sell the Chamber of Commerce to its membership, saying that the accomplishments of the chamber were manifold and, for the most part, unappreciated by the members themselves.

INSURANCE ON LANDIS AWARD

Chicago Builders Protected Against "Wrecking Crews."

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—A blanket insurance policy running into several millions of dollars to protect property owners who are behind the Landis building trades award from "wrecking crews" and vandals has been signed, the Citizens' Committee to Enforce the Award has announced.

At present, it was announced, the policy will be used to insure protection to builders against unions that fail to abide by the Landis award. It is planned to declare an open shop policy to combat such trades. Carpenters' unions have failed to accept the award and contractors now are employing carpenters on an open shop basis. All small jobs where open shop policy prevails will be covered by a $25,000 policy and a special policy is to be taken out for the larger contracts. All buildings under construction are being guarded night and day, the citizens' committee asserted.

CARDINALS TO POOL LIVING COST

Vatican Provides Quarters for Keeping House on Co-Operative Plan.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch. ROME, Nov. 6.—"Living in the purple" is no longer what popular fancy supposes—at least not in Rome, where the cost of living has plunged the Princes of the church into acute difficulties. The Cardinals find it impossible to live on their stipend of 20,000 lire a year, so they are going to try the experiment of keeping house together in co-operative fashion.

The Vatican has placed at their disposal quarters in the ancient Papal prisons, where each Cardinal will have his own apartment, while sharing the common dining room. A first-class chef has been engaged to preside over the culinary arrangements. Everything possible is to be done to cut down expenses in other directions. For instance, there will be only one automobile for the use of all those Cardinals who thus elect housekeeping.

TWO VILLAGES TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION BY SHIPPING BOARD

At Yorkship and Morgan Near Camden 1578 Cottages Will Go to Highest Bidders on Dec. 10.

BUILT FOR SHIPYARD WORKERS DURING WAR

Most of Structures in Good Condition and Occupied by Tenants Who Pay $25 to $50 a Month.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—A village for sale! Going—going—gone! The voice of the auctioneer will sound over the roofs of Yorkship Village, a town of war-built cottages near Camden, N. J., on Saturday, Dec. 10. In the motion picture house on Collings Road will be gathered house hunters prepared to bid for homes, and the 1600 brick cottages will go to the highest bidder.

It is the United States Shipping Board's way of ridding itself of the houses built in wartime for workers in the New York Shipbuilding Co.'s yards on the Delaware River, opposite Philadelphia. Yorkship Village is the center of Yorkship Village. Here was an open park with a few autumnal trees, several benches and a greenward. About the square were low brick Colonial houses, in four groups, one at every corner. Roads of concrete about the common contrasted gray-white with the white and red of the houses—all two-story brick.

1578 Houses in All. In the office of the Fairview Realty Co., charged with the renting of the houses, a reporter found the Superintendent, Mr. Cloud.

The total number of houses in Yorkship Village and Morgan, a nearer town, in 1578, of which 1386 are in Yorkship and 192 in Morgan, the superintendent said. In Yorkship there are 56 apartments and in Morgan there are three. The rental for a four-room house is $25 a month; for an eight-room house, $50. Other prices are between these two figures. All of the houses are equipped with electric light, gas range, water heater, hot air furnace, stationary wash-tub, modern bathroom. Electric light and heat are extra. Hot and cold water is supplied free of charge. "There is a good gymnasium here," Cloud said, "and we have an athletic field. Before the news got around that the Government is going to sell these houses we were renting them at the rate of eight or 10 a day; now it has fallen off. All the streets are concrete. I guess you saw that. There are Baptist, Methodist and Catholic churches here, and we've got the finest fire engine company in New Jersey right down the road. Original cost $12,000,000.

"The village cost to build about $12,000,000 all told. It was begun in September, 1918, and finished in February, 1919. "For two years now we have taken in about half a million a year in rents, so it would take 25 years at that rate to come out even. I don't know how much the houses will sell for. They are not the sort of shacks the Government put up at Mineola and Yaphank, don't forget that; they are not portable houses, but real brick, with concrete foundations. The heating is good; the entire community is really out in the country, and it takes only an hour or less to get here from Philadelphia."

Cloud escorted the reporter through four or five cottages. Coming to an eight-room apartment the superintendent said: "The rent of this is $52."

The reporter found no watery cellars, such as he had been told he would find. The cottages were in fairly good shape. There were, of course, walls of spotted wall paper and woodwork scratched and broken, and here and there a hole in the ceiling, the fixture gone, removed perhaps by a thrifty renter. But, altogether, the houses were in reasonably good repair.

A woman was sweeping her front porch. "How do you like the place?" she was asked. "This house?" "No—the whole place." "Oh, it's not so bad," she said, leaning her broom against the door. "The rents are higher here than in Camden, but you couldn't get a place like this in town for the same money. It's pretty hard to keep the house warm in winter, but we get along all right. We have a sort of community here at this end of the village, all Americans. At first there were a lot of foreigners, while the work in the shipyards was going on, but now it's different."

"If they sell the houses do you think the rents will go up?" "They better hadn't," she said sharply. "They'll have to reduce the rent, that's what they'll have to do. If they do that they will rent all the houses, otherwise people will move out. Times are hard. But everybody that buys a block of these cottages will be able to get a big return on his money, even if he does reduce the rent."

any day." Morgan Village was row after row of like cottages, all two stories high and all solid enough. A passer-by volunteered this advice: "If you intend to buy, buy in Morgan—don't forget—for the houses there are built to last."

PUBLIC HEARING BY MAYOR
ON NEW GARAGE ORDINANCE

A public hearing will be held by

Mayor Kiel Monday, at 11 a. m., in his office on the garage ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen at the suggestion of the City Plan

Commission. The measure provides that no public garage shall be established in the second residence district under the zoning law except with the consent of 75 per cent of the property owners in the block and the permission of property owners across the street for a distance of 100 feet each way from the garage entrance, and that in the commercial district no garage shall be established without the consent of 75 per cent of the property owners of the block.

It has been represented to the mayor that if he signs the ordinance there will be a shortage of public garages in these districts, as it will not be possible to get the required consent, so he wants to ascertain public sentiment.

MAIL GUARDING OBJECTION

Says in Answer to Hays He protests Only Against Promiscuous Shooting.

By the Associated Press.
MADISON, Wis., Dec. 1.—Replying to Postmaster-General Hays' statement that the shooting of a De Pere (Wis.) train rider by a mail guard would not alter the policy of guarding the mails in transit, Gov. Blaine today declared he objected, not to the mails being guarded, but to "guard shooting promiscuously at persons approaching mail cars."

"The matter took up with the postal authorities at Washington," he said, "was the promiscuous discharging of firearms, any the department's order to 'shoot to kill' whenever anyone suspiciously approached a mail car."

"I have information that the same marine who shot the youth at De Pere, who later proved to be a lad stealing a ride, had been plugging away with his rifle at several points along the route. It is in this condition that I called the department's attention."

Postmaster-General Hays said in his letter to the Governor that the matter of protecting mails "is of transcendent importance" and presents many difficulties.

"The mails must be inviolate," Mr. Hays wrote, "and the department will go to any length to keep them so. The public has the right to expect the fullest discharge of the department's duty in this regard and instructions have been issued that the armed postal employees shall do whatever is necessary to protect the mails."

"The extraordinary measure of using the marines is only justified by the necessities, and that as certainly as the proprieties and necessities require that the guards shall go no farther in the use of their firearms than is reasonably necessary considering the importance of their objective."

Representatives of Two Railroads State Attitude on Foreign Shipping Agreements.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Representatives of the Pennsylvania, Southern and Mobile & Ohio Railroads at a hearing today before a Shipping Board Committee expressed a willingness to terminate preferential contracts with foreign shipping lines after Commissioner Thompson had stated that such contracts were a menace to the success of the American merchant marine.

OPPOSED TO MOVING BUREAU

C. of C. Protests Against Veterans' Office in Kansas City

A telegram to Col. C. R. Forbes, director of the Veterans' Bureau at Washington, protesting a published recommendation for the removal of the Ninth District office of the Veterans' Bureau from St. Louis to Kansas City, was sent today by the Chamber of Commerce. The telegram follows:

"We earnestly protest against adoption of a published recommendation of Kansas Senators and Representatives to remove the Ninth District Office, Veterans' Bureau, from St. Louis to Kansas City. The Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska American Legion convention resolutions were introduced and adopted against the St. Louis American Legion protest by sheer voting strength. No economy in operating the district office and supervising compensation claims of ex-service men can result from such removal. The district office was placed here as the most available location under a five-year lease with three and a half years yet to run in quarters admirably adapted at relatively low rental, which we assert cannot be duplicated in Kansas City, to say nothing of moving expenses. We respectfully request a full hearing before any action be taken."

NURSE FINDS BURGLAR IN ROOM

Miss Mary Casey, a nurse at the St. Louis Maternity Home, 4530 Washington boulevard, discovered a burglar in her room at the home at 8 p. m. yesterday. He fled out a window when she screamed. A purse containing $1.50 was taken. Miss Casey, 444 E. Eighth avenue discovered a prowler on the second floor of her home at 7 p. m. and when she screamed he fled to a porch roof and then to the ground. Nothing was taken. Other burglaries were in the homes of Charles Aronberg, 5578 Waterman avenue, where clothes valued at $125 were taken; John Taylor, 3422 Palm street, jewels and clothing, $250; and Mrs. Irene Baumgart, 3225WA Lee avenue, $15.50 and jewels worth $125.

BARRETT WANTS SUPREME COURT RULING IN WILLMANN CASE

Attorney-General Barrett said today that he hoped to obtain a ruling from the Supreme Court on the case of Sheriff Willmann of St.

Louis County, who was acquitted last week by a jury of a charge of neglect of duty, in failing to raid a still of which he had knowledge. The State has filed a motion for a new trial of this case, and Barrett said the purpose of this motion was to get the matter before the Supreme Court for a ruling.

"What I wish to get from the Supreme Court," Barrett said, "is a ruling as to the duties of Sheriffs in enforcing the State prohibition law. The jury at Clayton seems to have taken the view that it is not a Sheriff's duty to carry on an aggressive campaign against violators of the prohibition law. Such a view would take the teeth out of the prohibition law, while a ruling of another sort might encourage Sheriffs in other counties to make a greater effort for enforcement of the law."

HALLIDAY FORGERY CASE COVERED BY FEDERAL STATUTES

Government Officials Decide
They Have Jurisdiction in Prosecution of Bankrupt
Broker and Harry Turner.

WITNESSES MAY BE CALLED FROM FRANCE

Representatives of J. P.
Morgan & Co. May Also Be Asked to Testify as to Nature of Certificates.

The Post-Dispatch Bureau.
No. 20 Warr Building.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—United States District Attorney Carroll of St. Louis was in conference yesterday with officials of the Department of Justice, regarding the evidence in the counterfeiting case in which George V. Halliday and Harry Turner are under bond in St. Louis.

Questions of evidence, to support before the grand jury the charge made in the Federal warrant against the two men, namely, counterfeiting the obligations of a foreign Government, were taken up by Carroll with William J. Burns, head of the Bureau of Investigation, and with legal experts in the department.

View As to Jurisdiction.
While Carroll and Burns would make no statement as to developments of the discussion, the Post-Dispatch learned that the view, at the department, is that the Federal statutes cover the case. Turner's lawyer has outlined, as a possible legal defense, a contention that the certificates counterfeited were not obligations of the French Government, but interim receipts of J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York, given to persons who were later to receive French Government bonds.

The view of the Department of Justice officials is that the United States Government protects its citizens from frauds growing out of various forms of counterfeiting. In the Halliday-Turner case it may be necessary to call French Government officials, as well as representatives of the Morgan firm, to establish the fact that the Morgan firm was the authorized fiscal agent of the French Government, and that its coupon-bearing certificates, in this case, were obligations of that Government.

Not Without Precedent.
The calling of witnesses from France would not be without precedent, as witnesses are frequently sent from one country to another as a matter of international comity. The Department of Justice, in this matter, would have to act through the State Department.

In reply to the suggestion of the defense counsel that the certificates had no inherent value, and therefore could not in a legal sense be the subject of counterfeiting, it was stated here that the counterfeiting of a check can be prosecuted under the Federal statutes, although a check has no inherent value.

FALSTAFF CORPORATION ASKS FOR ORDER IN BEER CASE

Brewing Company Holds Measure Passed by Congress Nov. 23 Is Unconstitutional.

The Falstaff Corporation, 3663 Forest Park boulevard, a brewing company of which Joseph Griese-diek is president, yesterday filed a petition in the United States District Court for an injunction to restrain Federal prohibition officers from enforcing the anti-beer law passed by Congress Nov. 23. This law denies the right to make and sell beer for medicinal purposes.

Prior to the passage of the law, and in accordance with a ruling by the Attorney-General's office, the company had prepared a quantity of beer to be sold on prescription and had obtained a permit from State Prohibition Director Allen. The passage of the anti-beer law nullified the permit.

In its petition the company alleges that the anti-beer law is unconstitutional on the ground that the Eighteenth Amendment did not authorize Congress to prohibit the use of intoxicants for medicinal purposes or to limit the kinds of intoxicants which might be so used. It also alleges that the Volstead act was unconstitutional. It asks that Allen be restrained from carrying out a threat to destroy the beer manufactured on his permit for use for medicinal purposes.

FIRE DESTROYS GRUNER HOME

Lack of Water Renders Efforts to Save Residence Futile.

The 10-room frame home of J. K. Gruner, vice president of the Philip Gruner & Bros. Lumber Co., Manchester and Collins roads, near Webster Groves, St. Louis County, was destroyed by fire which was discovered about 10:00 feet away, the only water supply. The house was completely destroyed, but part of the furniture was saved. The loss is estimated at $12,000 to $15,000, partly insured. The origin is attributed to sparks from a flue.

BELMONT SILENT IN INTERBOROUGH CASE

Seven Directors of Company Also Refuse to Explain Rapid Transit Dividends.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Refusal of seven directors of the Interborough Transit Co. to waive immunity in testimony before the State Transit Commission today on motion of Clarence J. Shearn, commission counsel, August Belmont, chairman of the Interborough board, said he was conscious the directors' action would be construed by some newspapers "as a half admission of criminal liability," but with them it was a matter of principle not to waive immunity. Six of the seven directors for whom subpoenas had been issued to appear for questioning regarding dividend declarations of 1918, 1919, appeared promptly at the hearing.

Directors Who Appeared.
The first to arrive were August Belmont, Edward J. Bevin, Jr., and Edgar General Cornelius Vanderbilt and Morgan J. O'Brien. They were followed by F. de Courcy Sullivan and Daniel G. Reid. Thomas de Witt Cuyler, reported in Washington, alone was absent.

James Quackenbush, chief counsel of the Interborough, and several other attorneys, accompanied them. Belmont was sworn in as the first witness. He declined to waive immunity.

Commission counsel stated that evidence previously presented had indicated that the subpoenaed directors were alleged to have been preceded or followed by loans had seriously impaired the capital of the company "which would carry with it a responsibility not only civil but criminal."

Belmont said his dealings were open books to the public.

Immunity Waiver Necessary.
"Open books, except that we want to question you about them, without your signing a waiver of immunity," commented the commission counsel.

"That's your fault," retorted Belmont.

After he had asserted that there appeared "a very serious question as to whether the dividends were not declared out of capital," the commission counsel said to Belmont: "I wish to make clear that in asking this waiver from you there is no implication from the commission nor from counsel that any such liability as I have suggested exists."

MAN HELD FOR GRAND JURY ON CHARGE OF KILLING A CHINESE

John Melski Identified as Assailant Who Beat and Robbed Leong Fong.

John Melski, 35 years old, of 1011 Wash. street, was ordered held for the grand jury by a Coroner's jury today, following a verdict of homicide in the inquest in the case of Leong Fong, 54, of 23 South Eighth street, a Chinese, who died at the city hospital Tuesday as the result of injuries he suffered when robbed and beaten in front of his home early Sunday morning.

About that time Melski approached a policeman at Ninth and Market streets to complain that two Chinese were following him. The policeman came up and identified Melski as the man who had beaten Fong. Fong identified him at police headquarters. Fong was thought not to have been seriously injured, but he was found to be in a serious condition on Tuesday and was taken to the hospital.

A warrant charging first degree robbery had been issued against Melski, who denied the charge, saying he was wrongly identified. Melski did not make a statement at the inquest, but Tom Toy, a Chinese, of 27 South Eighth street, one of those who caused his arrest, testified that Melski was Fong's assailant.

FINED FOR SELLING WILD DUCK

Resort Keeper Pleads Guilty of Having Wild Fowl.

Julius Teschemacher, proprietor of a resort at Creve Coeur Lake, was arrested yesterday by Deputy Game Warden John Heller, who says Teschemacher sold him two wild mallard ducks for $12.50 each. After the arrest 17 other wild ducks were confiscated and turned over to the Blind Girls' Home.

Teschemacher pleaded guilty before Justice Knoche at Creve Coeur and was fined $50 for selling wild fowl, $5 for each duck sold, and $17.50 costs, a total of $177.45.

City News in Brief

A MAN DESCRIBED AS ABOUT 40 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, and wearing a blue suit and dark overcoat, was found unconscious yesterday in a lot on Washington street near Jennings, St. Louis County, and taken to the city hospital. AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.
Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM OF OVERPOPULATION

Pan-Pacific Union Works to Make Soil More Productive in Lands of Pacific.

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—Education alone will bind together the peoples of the Pacific. It was decided at a series of conferences held recently under the auspices of the Pan-Pacific Union in Honolulu, the cross roads of the Pacific, according to Alexander Hume Ford, secretary-director of the union. Leading scientists and editors of Pacific lands attended the meetings.
Summing up the work of the conference, Ford, while here recently, said he was convinced that the press was the surest medium of educating the peoples of the Pacific as to each other's true aims and ambitions and in bringing them into better understanding.

What Has Been Done.
"Through the Pan-Pacific Union, which is now supported by all the Governments about the greatest of oceans, the scientists are arranging to study the scientific problems of the Pacific and to seek their proper solutions," Ford said. "Already they have found the remedy for leprosy, which is now being wiped out. They are taking up the study of fish food supply of the Pacific with the assurance that with scientific propagation and protection of fish in Pacific waters the Pacific Ocean will supply sufficient fish food, preserved, to feed the world. The problem of saturation, or the knowledge of just how many people a country may naturally support, is to be taken up by the Pan-Pacific Union and a conference will be called to discuss the subject. Two-thirds of the world's population live adjacent to Pacific lands and the immigration problem has become an acute one. Japan allows but 1500 Chinese to migrate to her shores annually and California does not wish this many Japanese, while Hawaii craves for thousands more Oriental laborers for her sugar cane fields.

"It has been pointed out by some Pacific scientists that the United States cannot support a population of more than a quarter of a billion living according to the standard of the Anglo-Saxon, while she might easily support a billion population living according to the standard of the Japanese and twice as many if the Chinese standard of living is adopted. Science steps in and says that perhaps means may be found to make the soil twice as productive as it is at present, which would, of course, solve the Japanese immigration problem for another generation and banish famine and starvation from China for some time to come."

What Science Did in Java.
"They point out that Java, with a population of 8,000,000 a century ago, suffered from famine and overpopulation. The Dutch stepped in with scientific methods of agriculture, with the result that today
Java, with a population of 36,000,- 000, is threatened with a serious shortage of labor."

"These are some of the problems discussed at the Pan-Pacific Union conferences. The heads of all Pacific countries are officers of the Union and it is even hoped that next summer a conference may be held in Honolulu of the Presidents and Premiers of Pacific lands."

ONE OF ENGLAND'S MOST LUXURIOUS HOMES FOR SALE

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Dec. 1.—Sunderland House, one of the most luxurious of ducal houses and the property of Mme. Louis Jacques Balsan, formerly duchess of Marlborough, and Consuelo Vanderbilt of New York, is in the market. During the war Sunderland House was commandeered by the Office of Work and all the famous art treasures were removed. Until quite recently it was the London home of the League of Nations.

This huge, square, French house in Curzon street, which was built by the late W. K. Vanderbilt as a gift for his daughter Consuelo, contains a great marble hall and a double gilt staircase. The rooms all run into each other and the whole of one side of the house is taken up by the ballroom which had a wonderful painted ceiling and great crystal chandeliers with the ducal crown and Churchill arms much in evidence.

The Duchess of Marlborough obtained a divorce from the Duke in 1920. In July last she was married to Lieutenant-Colonel Louis Jacques Balsan, a retired French army officer and a sportsman, who served during the war with the French army as liaison officer with the British air forces in France. Before her marriage to M. Balsan she had purchased a fine estate at Eze, near Monte Carlo.

OWLS' PRESIDENT GETS 5 YEARS

By the Associated Press.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 1.— John Talbot of South Bend, Ind., supreme president of the Order of the Owls, a fraternal organization, who was found guilty in United States District Court last week of violating the Mann act, yesterday was fined $5000 by Judge A. B. Anderson and sentenced to Leavenworth prison for five years. It was the maximum sentence for the offense.

Talbot was convicted on a charge of transporting Pearl Bagley from Topeka, Kan., to South Bend, Ind., for immoral purposes. He was permitted to remain at liberty under a $5000 bond and has 60 days in which to make an appeal. Prior to the sentencing counsel for Talbot filed motions for a new trial and for arrest of judgment. Both motions, however, were overruled. Talbot made no statement.

DIVIDED OPINION AS TO PASTEURIZATION OF CERTIFIED MILK

Citizens' Committee After Long Debate Votes, 21 to 16, for Ordinance Without Amendment.

SMALL PORTION OF SUPPLY AFFECTED

Assistant Health Commissioner Against Change in Law, Saying He Would Rather See It Fail.

A public meeting called by the Citizens' Milk Committee in Vander-voort's auditorium yesterday afternoon for consideration of the two milk ordinances before the Board of Aldermen divided itself in dispute as to whether certified milk should be exempted from compulsory pasteurization.

Pasteurization is designed to protect consumers from the effects of faulty production by destroying disease bacteria. Certified milk is milk produced in dairies certified by the Pure Milk Commission to be of so high sanitary standard as to reduce bacteria to a minimum. It sells for 25 cents a quart.

After an hour and a half debate, a vote resulted, 21 to 16, for the support of the ordinance without any amendment. Many present did not vote.

One Per Cent Unpasteurized. The only unpasteurized milk served in the city at this time is certified milk which is not more than 1 per cent of the total supply, and the product of about 70 small dairies within the city limits, less than 10 per cent of the total supply.

Those supporting compulsory pasteurization are fearful that if certified milk is exempted the 70 small dairies will continue to serve milk raw as they now are doing, claiming it to be of certified grade. Alderman and Federal Government surveys of these dairies found that most of them are in unsanitary quarters producing milk under conditions regarded as making pasteurization desirable if the milk is to be sold at all times for infant and child consumption.

Mrs. Alexander Wolf declared that the question was whether between depriving a very small percentage of babies of unpasteurized certified milk or subjecting a much larger number of babies in poor families to the dangers of unpasteurized raw milk, not of certified grade. "I feel that the 99 per cent must not be made to suffer that 1 per cent may have certified milk now," she said.

Mrs. M. G. Seelig, chairman of the Citizens' Milk Committee, supported the pasteurization of all milk. Assistant Health Commissioner Woodruff said that he would prefer to see the ordinance fail rather than have it amended to exempt certified milk from pasteurization.

Several interests represented. Dr. George Tuttle, president of the Pure Milk Commission, said that the commission believed that all milk, except certified milk but including that now served raw by the small dairies, should be pasteurized. He said that the presence of certified milk established a goal toward which dairymen might work.

H. E. Mortland, secretary of the commission, submitted a resolution of the St. Louis Pediatric Society declaring that it was for the milk bills except that it desired the exemption of certified milk from pasteurization. C. M. Hubbard, speaking for the Council of Social Agencies, asked that certified milk be exempted.

William H. Bohnenkamp, attorney for an association of small dairymen, appeared as opposed to compulsory pasteurization. On the final vote, the members of the Pure Milk Commission and the small dairymen, though their interests were no common, were thrown together in opposition to the women who have been urging milk reform for several months.

It was announced that the City Counselor's office had given an opinion that certified milk could be constitutionally exempted from the provisions governing pasteurization.

Montana Man Wins Wheat Title. By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—America wrested the wheat championship from Canada last night when George Kraft, Bozeman, Mont., was crowned 1921 wheat king at the International Grain and Hay Show, for which $10,000 in prizes was awarded by the Chicago Board of Trade. Kraft takes the title from J. C. Mitchell of Dandridge, Tenn., who had it for two years. Mitchell was runner-up for the sweepstakes this year. Kraft's wheat tested 68.6 pounds to the bushel and Mitchell's wheat tested 64.7 pounds; the smaller kernels giving greater weight.

Warrants Against 3 Saloonkeepers. A warrant was issued today charging sale and possession of illicit liquor against Wilbert Kroeger, proprietor of a saloon at 1466 South Grand avenue, where agents arrested him yesterday after buying a drink. A warrant with a similar charge was issued against James Morris, bartender in a saloon at 923 Market street, who the agents said, sold them half a pint of whiskey.

GERMAN REWARDED BY ENGLAND

Captain of Steamer Gets Testimonial for War Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—There is a saying of the sea that a sailor never forgets a service rendered a subject. This was borne out when it was learned the British consulate had bestowed on a German merchant seaman officer a silver loving cup and medal earned by a daring rescue in 1914.

In February of that year, the British steamship County of Devon capsized on her way from Norfolk to Rotterdam. For three days her captain and 24 members of her crew pitched in raging seas. The German tanker Deutschland was first to sight the hapless Britishers. Disregarding danger, a boat in command of the Deutschland's first officer, Ernst Hatzmeyer, put out and rescued the entire British crew. Then came the war. Early this year Hatzmeyer came into New York on the tank steamer Vistula. Capt. Hatzmeyer, British Consul General, presented to him England's testimonial for an act of bravery at sea.

Tumulty Reveals Wilson's Work for Ireland and Tragedy That Followed Irish-American Committee's Tour

Future of the Emerald Isle Might Have Been Adjusted Satisfactorily at the Versailles Conference if Irish Sympathizers Had Not Thrown the Fat Into the Fire.

By Joseph P. Tumulty,
For 10 Years Private Secretary to
Woodrow Wilson.

TO ONE standing on the side lines in the capital of the nation and witnessing the play of the ardor and passions of the people of the Irish race, demanding that some affirmative action be taken by our Government to bring about the realization of the right of self-determination for Ireland, it seemed as if the American President, Woodrow Wilson, who first gave utterance to the ideal of self-determination for all the oppressed peoples of the world, would be woefully unmindful of the age-long struggle that Irishmen had been making to free their own beloved land from British domination. But to those of us, who were on the inside of affairs, it was evident that in every proper and legitimate way the American President was cautiously searching for efficient means to advance the cause of self-government in Ireland and to bring about a definite and satisfactory solution of this complicated problem.

Embarrassed as he was by a delicate diplomatic situation, which to a great extent governed his conduct, he was not free openly to espouse the cause of Ireland. To have done so would have been to add difficulties to an already chaotic world situation. He was compelled in what he was seeking to do for Ireland to move quickly and by informal conferences impressively to lay the cause of Ireland before the world, the spirit of which in the matter. Unfortunately, these quiet methods of helpfulness which he brought to the task were the things that were most criticized by the enemies of the Irish cause, and even distrust of many men of the Irish race in America, who in their passionate devotion to the cause which lay so close to their hearts could not understand the necessity of accomplishing what they had in mind.

Long before the European war the President and I had often discussed the Irish cause and how to make it more prominent in the world. It means bringing results without becoming involved in diplomatic snarls with Great Britain. He was of the opinion that the Irish problem could not be solved by the failure of England to land, which for centuries had been demanding justice, was unconquerable. He pointed out to me on many occasions when we discussed this subject that the English Government had for centuries practiced, while it had resulted in filling the jails and in the shooting down of many hundreds of Irishmen, had but strengthened the tenacious purpose of the Irish people and had only succeeded in keeping under the surface the seething dissatisfaction of that indomitable race.

His Views on Irish Question.
I recall that at the conclusion of one of our talks after a Cabinet meeting, shaking his head as if he despised of a settlement, the President said: "European statesmen can never learn that humanity can be welded together only by love, by sympathy and by justice, and not by jealousy and hatred." He was certain that the failure of England to find an adjustment was intensifying feeling, not only in our own country, but throughout the world, and that the agitation for a settlement would inevitably result in a great national crisis.

In discussing the matter with me he said: "The whole policy of Great Britain in its treatment of the Irish question has unfortunately been based upon a policy of fear and not a policy of trusting the Irish people. How magnificently the policy of trust and faith worked out in the case of the Boers. Unfortunately, the people of Ireland now believe that the basis of England's policy toward them is revenge, malice and destruction. You remember, Tumulty, how Lincoln's mind by inflicting into everything that might lead him in his treatment of the South toward a policy of reprisal, but he contemptuously turned away from every suggestion as a base and ignoble thing. Faith on the part of Great Britain in the Irish people, and inherent generosity of the Irish people is the only force that will lead ever to a settlement of this question. English statesmen must realize that in the last analysis force never permanently settles anything. It only produces hatreds and resentments that make a solution of any question difficult and almost impossible. I have tried to impress upon the English statesmen that there never can be a real comradeship between America and England until this issue is definitely settled and out of the way."

Student of Irish Affairs.
Many times in informal discussions with British representatives that came to the White House the President sought to impress upon them the necessity for a solution,

The American committee of Irishmen have made it exceedingly difficult, if not impossible, to render the assistance we were diligently trying to render in the matter of bringing the Irish aspirations to the attention of the Peace Conference. By our unofficial activity in the matter we had, practically cleared the way for the coming of the Irish representatives to Paris when the American commission went to Ireland and behaved in a way which so inflamed British opinion that the situation has got quite out of hand, and we are utterly at a loss how to act in the matter without involving the government of the United States with the government of Great Britain in a way which might create an actual breach between the two. I made an effort day before yesterday in this matter which shows, I am afraid, the utter futility of further efforts. I am distressed that the American commission should have acted with such extreme indiscretion and lack of sense, and can at the moment see nothing further to do.

Philippines, holding them against the will of their own people, was another thing to be considered. Therefore, when he left for the other side to take part in the peace conference, the future of Ireland was much in his thoughts. But his solution of the problem lay in the establishment of a forum under the League of Nations before which not only the cause of Ireland but the cause of any oppressed people might be brought to the attention of the world.

Some Significant Letters.
Ireland's affairs were always in the background of the President's thoughts, and he welcomed conversations with those who were in a position to offer helpful suggestions. I append a correspondence, intimate in character and now for the first time "exposed to the public view," between the President, Mr. Sidney Brooks, a noted English writer, and myself.

Friday, April 20, 1917.
Dear Mr. President:
After several months in America I am now returning to England, returning, I need not say, in a very happy mood and with the consciousness that I have been able to do some good in the world.

On Dec. 3, 1917, Bishop Shanahan of the Catholic University addressed a letter to the President in behalf of the rector and faculty of the Catholic University of America, with reference to the question of home rule, to which the President replied.

The White House.
Washington, Dec. 3, 1918.
My Dear Bishop Shanahan: Allow me to acknowledge your letter of Nov. 29, written in behalf of the rector and faculty of the Catholic University of America, and to say that I have given it very careful consideration. I am sure that you will be satisfied with the result.

On the same date he addressed a letter to Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana as follows:
The White House.
Washington, Dec. 3, 1918.
My Dear Senator: I appreciate the importance of a proper solution of the Irish question, and thank you for the suggestions of your letter of yesterday. Until I get on the other side and find my footing in delicate matters of this sort I cannot forecast with any degree of confidence what influence I can exert, but you may be sure that I shall keep this important question in mind, and shall use my influence in every opportunity to bring about a just and satisfactory solution.

With the best wishes, cordially and sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.
Hon. Thomas J. Walsh, United States Senator.

While the President was in Paris I constantly kept him in touch with the situation in this country, and he was interested in bringing to the attention of Ireland is made clear by the following cables that were exchanged between us:

OFFICIALS FEAR ANY SPARK WILL RENEW IRISH WAR

Premier and Chancellor, in Messages, Declare the Negotiations Have Reached a Grave Stage.

"ONLY MIRACLE WILL SAVE SITUATION"

Sinn Fein Insists on Irish Unity and Is Firmly Set Against Vow of Alliance.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Dec. 1.—The possibility of renewed bloodshed in Ireland confronting the British Isles in consequence of virtual collapse of the peace negotiations which have proceeded under a truce for the last five months.

The Sinn Fein has stood firm on its demand for an all Ireland parliament as the basis of settlement, at the same time refusing to concede allegiance to the British crown. Ulster has refused point-blank to scrap her own parliament to enter an all-Ireland parliament "under present conditions," on the ground that she will come directly under the control of the numerically superior South.

The latest plans, that for an all-Ireland parliament, under which Ulster might retain her existing rights until, or unless, she changed her position, has failed with the formal statement by the Sinn Fein delegation here that it cannot be considered.

As a result, in both Government and Sinn Fein circles the opinion is expressed that nothing short of a miracle can avert collapse of the negotiations and resumption of the warfare in Ireland.

The Government heads are bending their entire efforts to seeking some unexplored avenue of negotiation, but it is believed all possibilities of settlement have been exhausted during the parleys which seem now to have ended.

As to how long the truce will last under present conditions there is no indication. The Sinn Feiners have expressed the view that there will be no formal denunciation of the pact by either side, and this leads to the belief that any spark of combat set off in Ireland with the peace movement apparently deadlocked may start the conflagration anew.

It had been intended to hold a Cabinet council last night to consider German reparations in connection with the visit of Dr. Walter Rathenau, but this had to be postponed in order to permit the special Cabinet committee dealing with Irish affairs to hold a sitting. Lord Birkenhead, due to speak at a political meeting in Liverpool, was obliged to stay in London. He sent a message of apology explaining that his absence was owing to "grave public affairs." Premier Lloyd George explained to the meeting, explaining that Lord Birkenhead's presence in London was "imperatively demanded by the present position of the Irish negotiations."

Sinn Fein Refuses to Yield.
A spokesman of the Sinn Fein declared last evening that there was no intention on the part of the Sinn Fein to accept the terms of the agreement either the unity of Ireland or allegiance to the crown. Representatives of the Sinn Fein took pains to deny formally the statement of a London paper that, first, the Sinn Fein had consented to agree to a plan whereby Ulster could contract with an all-Ireland Parliament, retaining her existing rights until, or unless, she changed her mind; second, to form an alliance "which ought to be satisfactory to any British Minister who is not purely a formalist"; third, the appointment of a boundary commission to delimit the present political and religious frontier of Ulster in order to distribute the populations between the North and the South on a more satisfactory basis.

Whatever the result, Mr. Lloyd George will go to Washington, a Downing street official said last night. Respecting this, it was stated at Sinn Fein headquarters that such a move on the part of the Premier "would not be viewed with patience, or without suspicion, for the reason that, if Irish America should be weakened in consequence of the Premier's visit to the United States, the Sinn Fein might be forced to modify its demands, upon which it feels now in a position to press."

Preservation of the truce in Ireland is being urged today by a considerable section of the British press. It is suggested that this be achieved through adjournment of the conference to a fixed date a month or six weeks hence. The Sinn Fein publicity department here reiterated this forenoon that it expected further meetings. It is believed arrangements regarding the truce will be considered at the next meeting.

OPEN SHOP THEORETICALLY RECOGNIZED IN NEW RULES FOR RAILWAY SHOP CRAFTS

Labor Board Supplants National Agreement With Regulations Relaxing Procedure in Many Cases in Roads' Favor

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Economies in operation and increased efficiency, estimated to reach $50,000,000 a year, and recognition of the "open shop" on all American railroads are forecast in the promulgation of revised working rules governing railroad shop employees by the United States Railroad Labor Board.

The new rules become effective today, and take jurisdiction over approximately 400,000 men immediately, although a still larger number will be affected when the normal traffic conditions are restored.

Far-reaching changes in the rules, which supplant the national agreement made during Federal control, were designed to afford a basis for permanent stability in the railroad shops of the country and were declared by members of the Labor Board to be the most important work yet done by the board and of much greater significance than any decision in the past, even including wage scale adjustments.

Labor Economies Expected.
Large economies are expected to result from revision of the classification rules, which were made more elastic, and hereafter will permit members of certain crafts to do minor jobs previously done by members of other crafts. Statisticians attached to the Labor Board estimated that economies in operation, increased efficiency and larger output would approximate $50,000,000 a year.

Provision for the representation of minorities who may have grievances, and the introduction of the new rules. Under the national agreement, negotiation for employees was placed almost wholly in the hands of labor organizations, with the result that the railroad and many industrial and civil institutions declared that the agreement forced a closed union shop on the employees. Nonunion workers were practically to attempt to bring their grievances before the board, and as the rules worked out, union officers handled the cases, taking their precedent from the national agreement. Negotiations in which union officers acted for the employees in drawing up the agreement under the new rules.

"The principle of the open shop established by the new rules," a statement by board members said, "will, in fact, be more theoretical than practical at the national level, since a large majority of the railroad shops are unionized and the existing unions are recognized by the board and by the transportation act as representative of the majority."

Most of the older working rules, sanctioned by the experience of years, are preserved in full effect. Many of the more rigid rules, however, were considerably relaxed in favor of the roads, although the recognized rights of the men are fully protected and the principle of collective bargaining and union representation is retained and exemplified by the transportation act.

The rules controversy dates back to May 1, 1920, when the railroads emerged from government control. Strenuous objections to the national agreement were made in a hearing which began Jan. 10, 1921. After several months of testimony, the rules were sent back to the industry on individual roads, but on no road was it possible to draft an entire new set. The rules disagreed upon were referred back to the Labor Board, and the rules promulgated today will replace any such rules not agreed upon by the roads and their employees. In any case where a rule has been agreed upon by the carrier and its employees, that rule governs, even though the Labor Board rule may be entirely different.

Classifications More Elastic.
The majority of the changes effected by the new rules is in the classification of the work to be performed by the various crafts. Almost without exception these classifications are made more elastic. Under the previous agreements with the shop crafts, including the national agreement, it has been the custom to define in detail the various types of work belonging to each craft. The carriers have complained that the national agreement set up in such minute detail the classification of duties that work not requiring specialized skill in any craft was assigned exclusively to a particular craft. For example, work not requiring a mechanic's skill was assigned to a skilled mechanic, thus making efficient and economical operation impossible, according to the roads.

The rules effective today broaden the scope of each craft's work. The machinist working on running repairs may connect or disconnect any wiring, coupling or pipe connections necessary to repair machinery or equipment. This work previously was assigned to electricians and sheet metal workers only.

Under the new rules, engineers, firemen and crane men are not prohibited from making such repairs to equipment on the lines of the road as they are qualified to perform. The new rules thus allow train operators to perform repair work, even though it is ordinarily considered shop machinist's work.

Work Assigned to Helpers.
Boiler makers' helpers under the new rules are given the job of removing and replacing grates. Under the national agreement all grate rigging work was assigned to journeyman boiler makers.

The classification of the work of the sheet metal workers, electrical workers and car men has been changed to allow some of the work previously performed by them exclusively to be done by their helpers and by mechanics in other crafts, where the needs of the service require it. Under the national agreement car men were assigned exclusively to wrecking cars. Under the new rules, wrecking crews, exclusive of engineers, will comprise car men, where sufficient men are available, but, when needed, men of any class may be taken as additional members of wrecking crews.

Another important change affecting not only the men but also the common laborers to dismantle wood freight cars hereafter. Under the national agreement, only qualified carpenters were allowed to do this work. About 65 per cent of the country's freight cars are built of wood. The new rule will permit employees getting $2.25 to $3 a day to do work previously required to be done by car men receiving $5.4 a day.

Special Apprentices Established.
An entirely new rule promulgated by the board, for the first time, establishes a new type of apprentice to be known as "special apprentice." Previously there have been three kinds of apprentices in the skilled shop crafts, regular and helpers' apprentices. Regular apprentices are youths entering the service between the ages of 16 and 21 years and serving four years' apprenticeship, and helper apprentices are those apprentices selected from the ranks of the helpers. Special apprentices are to be selected from young men between the ages of 18 and 26, who have had a technical school education, and they will be required to serve only three years' apprenticeship before becoming journeymen mechanics.

Rules which required certain kinds of force and equipment to be maintained for doing certain kinds of work have been modified, and some discontinued, thus eliminating the expense of maintaining particular classes of work on other work, when there is no work of their particular class to be performed.

Six Shop Crafts Involved.
The six shop crafts employees involved are the carmen, sheet metal workers, machinists, blacksmiths, boiler makers and electrical workers. They were represented at the rule hearings by the following organizations: Brotherhood Railway Carmen of America, International Alliance of Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers, International Association of Machinists, International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers and Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers, Builders and Helpers of America, and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. All these are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and are enrolled in the Railway Employees' Department of that organization.

The national agreement, supplanted today by the new rules, was entered into with the employees by the United States Railroad Administration Sept. 20, 1919. From the first it was strongly criticized by the railroad management and others because, they contended, it imposed uneconomic methods of operation on the railroads, limited the discretion and control of the management and greatly increased the cost of operation. They had no voice in making the national agreement.

In two previous decisions the board disposed of 24 shop crafts rules, mainly concerning overtime pay. Today's decision virtually completes the rules for these crafts, with the exception of a few minor matters on which an agreement is probable. These the board has referred back to the roads and the employees for settlement by them.

Action on the acceptability of the revised rules will not be taken until after the first of the year, B. M. Jewell, president of the Railway Employees' Department, said today.

"The language of these rules may seem drastic in some cases, while they may actually work out satisfactorily," Jewell said. "Certainly, if the 24 rules issued previously are sample, it won't take long to decide what to do with them."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Auditor Explains Bonus Case.

MY attention has been called to a letter signed "One of the Near-Heres" and appearing in Sunday's Post-Dispatch. The letter condemns the State officials for their decision to institute in the Supreme Court a test suit on the Missouri soldiers' bonus law, and the writer seems to be under the impression that the State Board of Fund Commissioners is seeking to delay payment of the bonus by instituting this test suit.
As a member of the State Board of Fund Commissioners, permit me to say that we have in mind two reasons for instituting this test suit, and I desire to state these for the benefit of "One of the Near-Heres" and all others who may be laboring under the same misapprehension.

1. Under the referendum provision of the State Constitution the Supreme Court has held that no law passed by the Legislature can become effective until 90 days after adjournment of the session at which it was enacted. (Appropriation acts and laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health or safety are excepted from the referendum provision.) The bonus law carried an emergency clause by which the Legislature attempted to put the law into effect immediately upon its being signed by the Governor on Nov. 11, 1921. This clause, however, does not state that the bonus law is necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety. For the General Assembly to have so said would have been an insult to the soldiers. Therefore, as the matter now stands, the bonus law could not be treated as being in effect until 90 days after adjournment of the last special session, which would be Feb. 16, 1922. By bringing this test suit immediately it may be that the Court will hold that the bonus law falls within the excepted class and is not referrable. If the Court should so hold, the bonus bonds can be issued and sold from 30 to 60 days earlier than the law of the soldiers. The purpose of the test suit is to hasten and not to delay
the payment of the bonus.

2. Following the decision of the New York Supreme Court in which the New York State bonus law was held unconstitutional, bond dealers refused to buy State bonus bonds unless the Supreme Court of the respective State had given its approval to the law. We found the market practically closed to Missouri bonus bonds unless our Supreme Court would pass favorably upon them. The filing of a test suit was an absolute necessity for this reason alone, if for none other.

It is hoped that what I have said will clarify this matter in the minds of those of the "Near-Heres" who have not gone into the many details and phases connected with the issuance and sale of $15,000,000 worth of bonds. Personally I would be deeply gratified could it be possible to have all bonus warrants in the mail for delivery to Missouri's ex-soldiers on next Christmas morning, but the task is of greater magnitude than is my realize. It is my aim and purpose, however, to do all I can toward issuing and selling the bonds and paying the debts at the earliest possible time.
GEO. E. HACKMANN,
State Auditor.

A Junior League of Nations?

THE critic who presumes Wilsonian is "boring the majority of your readers" meant to state "Wilsonian" is boring the majority of anti-leaguers to find an alibi why it was necessary to invite some independent nations (all members of the present League of Nations) to a special disarmament conference. Assuming the present association of nations now in existence at Washington, D. C., succeed in agreeing to form an alliance for world peace and limited armament, are we to name it the Junior League of Nations or the Holy Alliance of the Irreconcilables?
Let's have the Junior League of Nations
if we cannot agree on the original league, with such reservations as will assure world peace and prosperity. A League of Nations for world peace is a living reality, and the dream that tickles the anti-leaguers.
R. W. HELMER,
Webster Groves.

UP TO THE WORKERS.

The question of whether St. Louis will enter upon the new year with a great building boom is to be decided by the craftsmen of the building trades themselves.

The conference committee which has been trying to work out an agreement that would start the building revival reached an impasse in the matter of wage reduction. In that committee the public, the financiers, the material dealers, the building contractors and the Building Trades Council representing labor were all heard. Concessions and commitments satisfactory to the investors were made by the various interests with the exception of labor. Labor was asked to accept a basic wage reduction of 20 per cent.
The Building Trades Council proposed a 10 per cent reduction, but declined to recommend a 20 per cent decrease. The proposal was rejected. The Building Trades Council has now agreed to submit the matter of a 20 per cent reduction to the workers themselves.
The result of the referendum, it is expected, will be known before Jan. 1.

The question referred to the workers for decision is of vital importance to St. Louis. As has frequently been stated, a construction program of $15,000,000 is ready to be launched as soon as a satisfactory wage scale is arranged. There is no guesswork about these figures. Building in the amount named has been pledged to Director of Public Safety Cunliff, who has canvassed the field. Contracts for this construction will be signed between January and April of next year. This program does not include many comparatively small building projects. The entire construction program will reach the $20,000,000 total of the Post-Dispatch's original survey which inspired the effort to restore prosperity in full to St. Louis.

If the referendum's result is in favor of the 20 per cent reduction the building trades workers of St.
Louis will be assured of steady employment for a long period. Moreover, at the reduced scale, their wages will be equal to, or higher than, the wages of their fellow craftsmen in many other cities.

In one respect the building trades workers of St.
Louis are in a position which is difficult to defend.
Their present wage scale is still at the peak. While deflation has been proceeding throughout the whole country in all lines, including the wages of the building trades, the local wage scale has not receded a particle. Such a demand cannot be justified in the face of the facts.

Sooner or later the facts win. They will win in the St. Louis building situation. St. Louis now has an unenviable distinction; that of being the highest priced building labor market in the country—a price
so high that it has strangled the building industry.
The condition cannot persist. St. Louis must build.
Upon what terms is St. Louis going to resume building? It is for the workers in the building trades to say. If labor will join with the other interests in making a reasonable concession, building will be resumed on conditions of good, allround relationship and building labor will receive as high wages here
as it receives anywhere in the country.

Can the men in the building trades fairly demand more?

Can they afford to be unfair?

ROAD THEORY AND EXPERIENCE.

Senator Townsend of Michigan, author of the law appropriating $75,000,000 for allotment to the different states for road construction, discussed the measure interestingly in the Post-Dispatch Wednesday.
It is Mr. Townsend's judgment that Federal money should be expended only on interstate roads and the original bill creating a Federal Highway Commission so provided. The present law is somewhat less rigid in that respect. It permits the expenditure of Federal money on any road project which constitutes 7 per cent of the total road mileage within the State, though it requires that three-sevenths of such project shall be roads actually or potentially of interstate character.

From his experience and observation of road construction, in which he has become something of a specialist as regards road legislation, Mr. Townsend, evidently, believes that the sound order of construction is to build the interstate or "through" roads first,
after which the laterals will inevitably and promptly follow. It should be remarked, too, that "enforced maintenance, which in the past has been such a crying need, is now provided for with respect to all roads upon which Federal money has been expended."

The attention of Theodore Gary, recently appointed chairman of our State Highway Commission, which is to manage Missouri's great road-building program, is respectfully directed to Mr. Townsend's comment on the latest Federal road enactment. Mr. Gary's idea as to the plan of building is the direct opposite of Mr. Townsend's, while as regards maintenance Mr.

Gary holds that a road is never built until so constructed that maintenance costs will be eliminated.
Mr. Gary is a theorist who should earnestly study the lessons of experienced men like the Michigan Senator.

THE MEANING OF THE RATIO.

The issue raised by Japan's appeal from the ratio laid down by the United States as a basis for the relative strength of the three leading sea Powers during the period of the "naval holiday" appears to be reducible to the simple question of whether the Japanese are to enter into the spirit and purpose of the conference or whether they will turn deliberately from it.

The American Government concluded justly that the only feasible basis on which to proceed toward reduction is the basis of present relative power of the navies. The only other possible principle of fixing the ratio is that of strategic necessity. The former basis is rational, simple and easily calculable. It answers the aim of statesmanship and of the cause of peace and ultimate disarmament. The latter is the sardonic device of the expert tacticians who, though they cannot control the human and circumstantial elements in battle, still insist on figuring conclusions down to a fraction of a per cent.

It is on the latter principle that the Japanese appeal from the American ratio is based. It is put forward as the advice of an Admiral and is exactly what is to be expected from that source. Were the other Powers to concur with Japan in the acceptance of this principle, the calculations would be endless.
In all probability they would be unreliable and, most objectionable of all, they would be out of step with the spirit of the conference. They would necessarily predicate distrust and contemplated future hostil-ties between the leading Powers. It is just that from which the world wants to get away. A reduction of navies on a military basis would not be a step toward the abolishment of war. It would be merely an agreement between duellists to reduce the length and strength of weapons. The spirit of assassination would remain. To remove the last shred of justification for the Japanese position it is stated by American and British experts that an acceptance of Japan's principle of reduction on a basis of national security would not increase her allotment but reduce it.

Finally, Japan is already morally committed to the Hughes ratio. She has accepted our Secretary of State's proposal "in principle and spirit." If this means anything it means her consent to naval reduction on the basis of present strength, and the Hughes figures, as yet unchallenged, allow Japan the benefit of just a little more than that to which she would be exactly entitled.

To concede Japan's present claims would be less of military than of moral importance. It would indicate a defeat not of the material achievements but of the spirit of the conference.

THE OATH TO THE CROWN.

It may be that other differences than that raised over the oath of allegiance to the British crown would have stood in the way of Irish reconciliation and peace. That should not save the oath from being properly characterized for the suffering of which it may have been and may yet be the unnecessary cause.
Unwilling oaths of allegiance to a crown have no proper place in an age which professes self-government as an ideal. An insincere oath of allegiance is, of course, a lie and a perjury. A person or a people which refuses to take such an oath is only exercising the right to be personally honest. Denial of that right is tyranny.

It is obvious that any Irishman, except an Ulster-man, could not, with sincerity, swear allegiance to the British crown. He might agree to support the English Constitution or any other impersonal institution not obnoxious to him. That would be quite a different matter. Allegiance to a crown presumes a personal relation and an emotion which, if it does not exist in the heart, cannot be implanted there by force or coercion.

The British people may be sincere in their own democracy. They are sadly wanting in imagination, however, when they fail to recognize the denial of democracy in any attempt to force an alien medieval vow on an unwilling people.

LADIES' CHOICE.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
By Clark McDanna

JUST A MINUTE IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—If Japan should kick over the traces and refuse to stand hitched in the naval concert—and nobody here believes she has the least notion of staying out after she has traded a little—we would only lapse where we lapsed after Germany kicked over at The Hague and the United States booted the international concert at Paris. What we shall think of Japan if she plays that ignoble part can be only what the world formerly thought of the German empire and more recently thought of us. It is good for us to have a more intimate view of this phenomenon than we have usually enjoyed, for there is nothing else that we need quite so much as a keener realization of our own amazing apathy at a time when civilization counted us safely in the fold.

If by some similarly overt act the Japanese could reveal to us the enormity of our own crime against the peace of the world they might render even as great a service as they could possibly render by coming in. Once we realized what we did our repentance would become the veritable savior of civilization. At this time we only suspect our perfidy. Our repentance is feeble, as the conference in Washington, which in its best expression, is feeble by comparison with what might have been done by our co-operation. The reason nobody believes Japan is going to make agreement impossible is that nobody believes Japan will be willing to put herself in this position. Germany did it, and her empire perished from the earth.
We did it, and our empire cannot be still.

It cries out of the mass and out of individuals.
Even a wild man like Senator Borah realizes that something terrible happened. His own grotesque efforts to ruin his conference are no worse than those of our very Government.

Who else wants to go this way? Certainly not Japan. The obsequy of civilization is a darkness and a despair. One stands accused before God. Japan does not want to stand so accused.
Do not be afraid that she is going to reject
the Hughes proposal. She is merely bluffing.
She has no intention of doing what Germany and the United States have so terribly suffered for doing. Japan is not saying whether the Kaiser on his word at Amerongen sadly ruminating on what have been in any worse plight really than our Mr. Harding in the White House puzzling over how we are to war our of the League of Nations while still accepting it, as they say down here, in principle and spirit. That is a tremendous equation—much too great, indeed, for the Japanese, who have never had any outstanding metaphysical philosophers or humanitarians—only the cold and faraway Buddha, to whom jade and bronze are so peculiarly becoming. Japan does not want her Emperor to saw wood. She has neither the power nor the vogue to make amends as we are trying to make them. She could not get a Corporal's guard out to attend a disarmament conference in Tokio. Her way is plain.
Be it even so hard, it is still marked for her as if the gods themselves, in their granite boots, had gone on before her.

These things are not so easy as they seem.
If you will read what Mr. Tammery is telling about the Paris conference you will get some hint of the difficulties which were the undoing of Mr. Wilson. Mr. Harding will be a wiser man when the present conference is over. The innumerable complexities, as the psychoanalysts call them, entering into any sort of international concert, are only discoverable to one participating in the discussions and hearing some part of the responsibility. The best thing said when Mr. Wilson left the White House was this from the London Round Table:

The "great and solemn referendum" which he planned and promised has destroyed him. The prophet has been disheveled by his own country. He has been swept by the tide of aversion down from the highest pinnacle ever momentarily attained by a statesman of modern times.

The man whose pen splintered the swords of Prussia, the man before whose image the peasants of Italy burned candles, the man who gave form to the loftiest political ideal that ever captured the conscience of the world, is broken and beaten by the rods of his own people.

There is no need to dwell upon his personal tragedy. It is clear, it is complete—and it is as old as time.
"There is no need to dwell upon his faults. They have been well advertised."
Woodrow Wilson's egoism, his mistakes of judgment, and his stern inflexibility have been mounded and magnified by spellbinders during the campaign, to the joy of crowds who would seem to have lost even their sense of sportsmanship.

"Government is a very simple thing after all," Harding has said. But on the day when the Senator becomes President, above the tumult and the shouting on Capitol Hill, a small, unattended group will leave the White House. In their midst will be carried a man with snow-white hair, bowed back, distorted features and emaciated frame—a man, with body broken and heart broken in the service of a great ideal—a man who knows that government is not a simple thing after all.

There has never been anything to the conference but this consideration of what Japan will do. We had said at the outset what we did say. England had decided within a few days what she would do. Both England and the United States were impelled by necessity.
The British empire can survive only with peace on every front, and the United States cannot live with its conscience until it makes some amends for staying out of the League of Nations. The thing was, therefore, up to Japan.
What would Japan do? Japan knew this full well. She knew the conference was about her. She did not attach any importance to other considerations which might engage the conference while the real question was being considered in committee. She brought the very frame of her empire with her. It was almost the same as if, asked to go somewhere and decide what course we are to take henceforth, our own empire crossed the sea with Congress, the President and his Cabinet, our military and naval experts, economists from all our business and technical schools, historians from our colleges and universities, our big bankers, our principal publicists, our two-story editorialists, our poets and novelists of the first magnitude, our heavy playwrights and some representative from every walk of life which contributes to our importance. Imagine that spectacle disembarking upon foreign soil, and you have an approximation of the way in which Japan came over here to determine, in consultation with the rest of the world, what her subsequent course is to be in the East.
The respects in which her delegation differs from what our own would be are the respects in which her government differs from ours.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

ACTIVITIES OF COLLEGE WOMEN.

From the Indianapolis Star.

THE Pan-Hellenic Congress which met in Indianapolis with representatives present from 18 national women's societies and from most of the States of the Union has proved a valuable instrument in the "democratization" of women. It was organized 18 years ago for the purpose of reducing and ameliorating the state of war among sororities in all colleges at rush time. The theory of the founders was that the war the work of the 18 societies composing this body, both active and alumnae chapters and the various city Pan-Hellenic bodies, along philanthropic lines, has been remarkable. Such an organization affords a training school for women whose value can not be overestimated. The scope of its work would have been incomprehensible to the college women of 30 years ago.

AN EFFECT OF THE WAR.

From the New York Tribune.

THE war period, by its dislocations, lessened
the normal increase in wealth production.
Since, because large numbers have thought they could deny economic law, there has been a further lessening. Men have been foolish enough to believe they could get more by producing less,
by discouraging men of enterprise from venturing and by making social co-operation, which is never easy to get, more difficult through stimulating distrust and class prejudice. Heavy, most heavy, is the cost of the unbacked radicalism which has flourished in various forms since Armadale day. If the Saul of War slew his three slaves, then the false David of the time slays his slain his tens of thousands. This country, when labor and capital work together amicably, each fairly doing its best, is capable of adding approximately 50 per cent per decade to its annual wealth. The people get the benefit in a higher standard of living. But recently, while not actually going backward in wealth production, there is not the normal increase. When former harmonious relations are re-established living standards will again go upward, but scarcely before. As long as labor sticks on its job or capital is a scared rabbit, how can general disinfection be avoided?

NEWSPAPER READING.

Walter Lippman in Century Magazine.

THE college students were asked to name "the five features which interest you most." Just under 20 per cent voted for "general news," just under 15 for editorials, just under 12 for "politics," a little over 8 for finance, not two years after the armistice a little over 10 for foreign news, 3 1/2 for local, nearly 3 for business, and 1 1/2 per cent for news about "labor." A surprising fact was that they were most interested in sports, special articles, the theater, advertisements, cartoons, book reviews, "accuracy," music, "chickadee," society, brevity, art, stories, shipping, school news, "current news," print. Disregarding these about 67 1/2 per cent picked as the most interesting feature news and opinion that dealt with public affairs. This was a mixed college group. The girls professed greater interest than the boys in general news, foreign news, local news, politics, editorials, the theater, music, art, stories, cartoons, advertisements, and "chickadee." The boys, on the other hand, were most absorbed in finance, sports, business page, "accuracy" and "brevity." These discriminations correspond a little too closely with the ideals of what is cultivated and moral, manly and decisive, not to make one suspect the utter objectivity of the replies.

WIDENING OF MCKINLEY BRIDGE RECOMMENDED

Estimates of Improvement Made Necessary by Heavy Traffic
Sent to Bondholders.

Increase in traffic between St. Louis and the East Side has caused plans to be made for the partial rebuilding of McKinley Bridge, spanning the river from Broadway and Salisbury street in St. Louis to Main street in Venice, Ill. Recommendation has been made that the bridge be widened and repaved.

E. D. Bell, superintendent of the St. Louis and Illinois Electric Bridge Co., has recommended to the McKinley syndicate, of which Congressman William B. McKinley is president, that steps be taken at once to take care of the rapidly growing interstate traffic, and estimates of the cost have been sent to the bondholders' committee. T. B. Macaulay of Montreal, chairman of this committee, was in St. Louis recently and made a thorough study of the situation. He will make known his decision at a meeting in a few weeks.

Concrete Roadway Planned.
The plan is to attach brackets to each side of the bridge, widening the roadway on each side several feet. With this accomplished the roadway, which is now composed of wood sections, of timbers bolted together, will be laid with concrete. "To do this," said Supt. Bell today, "it will be necessary to pave the central part of the bridge, now used exclusively for railway traffic by trains of the Illinois Traction System and local cars of the St. Louis-Union Trust Co. This in itself will be a big task, but it will be necessary in order to take care of all kinds of traffic while the wagon ways on the outside of the bridge are being rebuilt. Wagon and foot traffic would then for the time being go through the central spans with the rail traffic."

"The bridge is now taxed far beyond what was estimated. It has been in use 10 years. Traffic increased 50 per cent in the first five and has doubled in the last five years over the amount at the end of the first five. It is increasing at such a pace that another 100 per cent increase will soon be registered. The hard roads through Illinois and the development of East Side industries accounting for a constant growth."

Single File Necessary.
"At present most vehicles can pass on the roadway, but by a very narrow margin. The wider-axled trucks and wagons cannot pass, hence traffic must single file, and the north roadway is used for westbound only and the south roadway for eastbound."

The McKinley Bridge is of heavy cantilever type and was designed by Ralph Modjeska. The increased use of heavy trucks has made it almost impossible to keep the roadways in condition and there has been considerable complaint of broken boards, snapped and upended by the heavy trucks, some of which are now taking load of 30,000 pounds across the bridge.

CLASS I RAILWAYS EMPLOYED 1,164,872 PERSONS IN JULY

Wage Cost for Month, $214,339,385, Interstate Commission's Report Shows.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Class I railroads, comprising those with monthly receipts in excess of $1,000,000, employed 1,164,872 persons in July, 1921, at a wage cost of $214,339,385, according to a report just published by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The report was the first of a series compiled under provisions of the transportation act to show the aggregate number of employees, their classification, wages, working hours and other vital data.

Of the workers listed in today's report, 15,155 were classified as executive officials, receiving average monthly pay of $523. There were approximately 121,000 persons working on maintenance of way, 450,000 on maintenance of equipment and 289,253 on train and engine transportation service.

Average rates of pay for 48 classes of employees, ranking from messengers to general managers, were found by the commission, the lowest being $12 a month. The studies will be amplified and maintained, the commission said.

MILITARY ENOCH ARDEN SEEKS DIVORCE FROM RUSSIAN IN U. S.

Former Imperial Guard Captain Finds Wife Had Married in Belief
He Had Been Killed.

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—Victor Turin, former Captain of the old Imperial Russian Guard and a member of the Quondam Russian military mission, has filed suit here for divorce from Najda V. Troubetskoy, once of Russia and now said to be living in Providence, R. I.

Capt. Turin's suit alleges improper relations with Capt. Wallace Straits Schults to whom she was said to have been married in Washington last year, believing that Capt. Turin had been killed in battle before Verdun. On Capt. Turin's return, alive, this year the two husbands met, according to the complaint today, and became firm friends. Later the Schults marriage was annulled.

In a crowd protect yourself from throat germs

Riding in the crowded car, going along the dusty street, sitting in the stuffy office, theatre or school, you are bound to inhale the germs of disease. These germs lodge in the soft tissues of the mouth and throat and if unchecked, may develop into a dangerous ailment.

Formamint, the germ-fighting throat tablet, can be conveniently used at any time or in any place you may be. At the first sign of a sore throat, or when you are exposed to germs, take a tablet and let it dissolve slowly in your mouth. Can be beneficially taken every half hour until throat is relieved.

Formamint mixes its powerful, pleasant tasting antiseptic with the saliva, bathing the infected membranes continuously; combats the germs and keeps them at a safe minimum.

The tablets are so convenient to carry with you, that they can be used unobtrusively wherever you may be. Buy a package from your druggist today, and be prepared to ward off sore throats, tonsillitis and influenza. Men find them very helpful in easing "smokers' sore throat."

Recommended by throat specialists, physicians, dentists and druggists.

JEWS OF FIVE STATES TO RAISE $1,200

Nathan Frank to Direct Campaign in Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

More than 100 Jews of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, at a dinner meeting of the Columbia Club, yesterday, participated in the national drive for the American Jewish Relief Committee for $14,000,000 for relief of Jewish war sufferers. Nathan Frank, of St. Louis, was elected chairman of the drive. He pledged himself to raise $1,200,000 or more in the five states during the week of Jan. 15, 1922. The meeting was called by Nathan Frank, Dr. B. B. Bogen, for seven years director of the Joint Distribution Committee, and what had been done in the past was to be done. Nathan Frank, of Chicago, for more than two years executive secretary of Jewish relief work abroad, and the conditions in Russia and Poland, of thousands of orphaned children, many of whom are of millions of Jews. He said it was imperative to transport these people to their own countries and they would be aided in their own lands. David A. Brown, national campaign chairman, declared the reputation of the Jew for care of his own was at stake. He read a letter from President Harding endorsing drive and complimenting the agencies for their efforts abroad, and read a telegram announcing that about $800,000 had been subscribed at a dinner given Tuesday night. Nathan Frank's $2,000,000 drive. Rabbi Nathan Krass of New York, made an eloquent appeal for the sufferers. No donations were solicited. The states are: Missouri, $700,000; Kansas, $750,000; Oklahoma, $125,000; Arkansas, $125,000. The latter has been subscribed. Nathan Frank elected zone chairman.

21 DRUG ADDICTS OR PEDDLERS SENTENCED

Jail and Penitentiary Terms Imposed by Judge Farris—48 Others Indicted.

Federal Judge Farris yesterday sentenced 21 persons accused of violations of the Harrison anti-narcotic act to prison terms ranging from three months in jail in the case of several addicts, which he said were imposed to cure them of the habit, to four years in the penitentiary for known peddlers.

Judge Farris, who has repeatedly said he has great sympathy for addicts but none for persons not addicted to the use of drugs who sell them for profit, closely questioned the addicts who came before him as to the effect their terms in jail had had upon them.

George Stewart, who said he had been addicted to the use of drugs for 12 years, pronounced the city jail "dope proof" for whites and declared the four months and eight days he had spent there awaiting arraignment in court had cured him of the drug habit. Stewart gained 70 pounds in weight while in jail. His sentence was for the time he had already served.

Frank Fellows, whose legs were amputated just below the knees and who told the court he had undergone 23 operations in eight years, said when Judge Farris sentenced him to serve three months and 17 days in the city jail: "I'd rather be hung, Judge." He thanked the court, however, a moment later when he announced the sentence was to run from Aug. 13 to the time he left the jail to be brought into court.

Charles Walker, formerly a negro janitor at police headquarters, was sentenced to a year and a day in the penitentiary at Leavenworth on his plea of guilty to a charge of selling drugs to prisoners in the police hold-over. Walker was caught dispensing the drugs by a policeman who went into a cell with several addicts for the purpose of trapping him.

All but four of those sentenced by Judge Farris were negroes. Indictments, charging violations of the Harrison act, were returned against 48 persons.

CONVICTIONS IN PATENT OFFICE DECLARED TO BE "DISGRACEFUL"

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Present conditions in the United States Patent Office at Washington yesterday were characterized as "disgraceful" and constituting "a blow at the vitality of our industrial system," by Thomas Ewing, former Commissioner of Patents. Addressing a meeting of lawyers called by the New York County Lawyers' Association.

he declared that through delay in passing on them, $7,000 applications for patents were lying without attention in the Washington office. Salaries in the office, he said, were so small as to attract "only the rawest youth leaving college," adding that a majority of the examiners employed there during the last five years had resigned for the reason that salaries had been increased 10 per cent in 70 years.

MAN AT 70 BEGINS TEN-YEAR SENTENCE

John Mahan Starts Term Imposed for Shooting While Defending His Dog.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 1.—John Mahan, 70 years old, of St. Louis, is in the penitentiary, serving a 10-year sentence for second degree murder. He was convicted by a jury in the St. Louis Circuit Court Nov. 13, 1919, and his appeal to the Supreme Court was dismissed two weeks ago, the verdict of the jury being affirmed. Mahan, who resided at 2215 North Broadway, was found guilty in connection with the killing of Melville Tobin, who was fatally shot July 20, 1919.

The plight of the prisoner has attracted the sympathy of prison officials and inmates, not only because of his age but because of the fact that his crime was committed in defense of his dog. He was at one time a London "Bobbie," and later was employed as a private watchman in St. Louis. Because he has no strength to do heavy work in the prison he has been given a job as watchman in a corridor of one of the jail buildings.

Tells Story of Tragedy.
The story of the tragedy in which his peaceful little world was shattered, as related by him at the time of the shooting and repeated to interested listeners at the penitentiary, is about as follows:
Mahan was sitting in a chair in his doorway on North Broadway about 10 o'clock on that July night, clothed only in his trousers, under-shirt and slippers, smoking his pipe. Beside his chair lay his dog, dozing as he stroked her head. Down the sidewalk came a group of men and women. Rather noisy they were. As they came abreast him, one of the women, uttering profanity, struck him on one cheek, a "back-hand slap." One of the men, carrying a musical instrument case, hit the dog with it as Mahan rose and got behind his chair. After one of the other men had kicked viciously at him, the party moved on.

Started for Patrol Box.
Mahan went upstairs, put on his coat, got his revolver and started down to a corner to a police call box to get a patrolman to help him. He called to them, saying, "halt," shooting once into the air to emphasize his demand.

Then he was rushed, and an effort was made to get his weapon from him. In the struggle, Tobin was shot. Mahan insisting that Tobin himself held the revolver at the time it was discharged.

But the jury said it differently, and now John Mahan is here, apparently without hope of regaining freedom. He holds no hope at any rate, for the enormity of his misfortune has completely discouraged him. He awaits a release not written by court or prison officials.

TWO SURF SCOTTER DUCKS SHOT NEAR ST. CHARLES

Species Native of Labrador Rarely Migrates Further South Than the Great Lakes.
A male and female surf scotter, a species of duck native of Labrador, were shot last week near St. Charles by H. A. Steinwender of 4400 Lindell boulevard.
Frank Schwartz of the St. Louis Natural History Museum Association said that in 40 years' familiarity with birds migrating through Missouri he had heard no previous report of the presence of surf scoters this far south. The scoters seldom get below the Great Lakes, he said. He believed that the ducks had become mixed in with a flock which "led them astray."

The male scotter is black with a white spot at the base of the head, and is somewhat larger than a mallard. The female is duller in color, approaching a brown. Steinwender is having the pair preserved by a taxidermist.

Choice Cuts

—and Others

A few months ago a newspaper man visited one of the wholesale markets of Swift & Company. He wanted to see a retailer buy a short loin of beef and then watch the retailer sell the porterhouse and sirloin steaks from it over his counter. He thought this would make a good story.

The head of the market took the reporter into the "cooler" where he showed him a high class side of beef. With a wooden skewer he marked off the short loin and said, "That is only 8 per cent of the weight of the whole side and it is selling for four times as much as this piece (and he marked off the "chuck," which is about one-fourth of the side of beef)."

The wide variation in the wholesale price of various cuts from the same side of beef is caused largely by demand for the so-called choicer cuts. The others are, of course, just as wholesome.

It seems as though more people than ever are demanding choicer cuts, and their demand sets the price. If few people ask for the fore-quarter cuts, the price of forequarters will automatically drop to a figure low enough to induce people to buy because of cheapness.

Even though certain cuts sell for relatively high prices, other cuts, due to lack of demand, sell so low that our profit from all sources over a period of five years averaged only a fraction of a cent a pound.

It is competition between consumers for the choicer cuts that keeps prices for those cuts relatively high; an equalizing demand for all parts of the carcass would benefit producer, packer, retailer and consumer.

Our average wholesale selling price of all products has fallen about 40 per cent since September 1920.

TUMULTY TELLS OF WILSON'S EFFORTS TO ASSIST IRELAND

Grayson, for the President, as follows:

The White House.

Washington, June 7, 1919.

You cannot overestimate the real intensity of feeling behind Irish question here. It is growing every day and is not at all confined to Irishmen. The passage of resolution of sympathy with almost unanimous vote in Senate last night is but a slight evidence of interest here. I wish the President could do just a little for 1 fear reaction here upon League of Nations which this situation could be straightened out, it would help a great deal.

TUMULTY.

The President himself replied to this cable, showing the depth of his interest in the matter.

Paris, June 8, 1919.

I have tried to help in the Irish matter, but the extraordinary indiscretion of the American delegation over here has almost completely blocked everything.

WOODROW WILSON.

On June 9, 1919, I received a further cable from the President, as follows:

Paris, June 9, 1919.

The American Committee of Irishmen have made it exceedingly difficult, if not impossible, to render the assistance we were diligently trying to render in the matter of bringing the Irish aspirations to the attention of the peace conference. By our unofficial activity in the matter we had practically cleared the way for the coming of the Irish representatives to Paris when the American commission went to Ireland and behaved in a way which so inflamed British opinion that the situation has got quite out of hand, and we are utterly at a loss how to act in the matter without involving the Government of the United States with the Government of Great Britain in a way which might create an actual breach between the two. I made an effort day before yesterday in this matter which shows, I am afraid, the utter futility of further efforts. I am distressed that the American commission should have acted with such extreme indiscretion and lack of sense, and can at the moment see nothing further to do.

WOODROW WILSON.

To this cable I replied as follows:

The White House.

Washington, June 9, 1919.

Thanks for message about Ireland. Hope you will not allow indiscretions of American commission to influence your judgment against Ireland. Lloyd George's mistakes in handling this will be his undoing, for it has in it the elements of a revolution. It is our own political situation here and the fate of the treaty itself that concerns me in this country the Irish and in this matter and in every large city and town are carrying on a propaganda, and that Ireland be given the right of self-determination. George Creel, in a powerful article yesterday in the newspapers said:

"The question of Ireland cannot be ignored, either in honor or decency. I trust you can say a word. Could you not ask that Irish delegates be given a chance to present their case to the conference?"

TUMULTY.

On June 25, 1919, I sent the following cable to the President:

Gen. Maurice, in wonderful article in New York Times on League of Nations, says about Ireland: "One obvious need to complete the process of bringing all nations together is that we should show that we know what America did in the war, but there is another obvious need, which presents greater difficulties. We must have a policy in regard to Ireland which we can explain to the American people. At present Ireland threatens to reopen all the rifts which comradeship in the war is closing."

The New York Evening Post of last night prints the following editorial:

"Self-government for the Irish people, short of independence, is a right and a necessity, and it is a satisfaction that once more a movement is under way for the establishment of Ireland on the basis which logic and history have determined—a dominion on an equal footing with the other dominions under the British crown."

Frankly, this represents the opinion of the average man in America, without regard to race or religion. The arrival of De Valera in America is going to intensify the feeling and the Republicans will take full advantage of it. Now that the League of Nations is on its feet, we should take the lead in this matter which logic and history have determined—a dominion on an equal footing with the other dominions under the British crown. It is in anticipation of this that I am anxious to have you play a leading part in this situation. It would do much to make the League of Nations a living, vital force in the affairs of the world, there are no boundary lines between men people any more.

TUMULTY.

The President replied to my cable as follows:

Paris, June 27, 1919.

Tumulty.

I entirely agree with the general tenor of your cable of the twenty-fifth about the Irish question and I firmly believe when the League of Nations is once organized it will afford a forum not now available for bringing to the opinion of the world, and of the United States in particular, to hear on just such problems.

WOODROW WILSON.

Of course, the thing which lay close to Woodrow Wilson's heart was the setting up of the League of Nations. Unless England and France should consent to the establishment of a league as part of a world settlement, the solution of the Irish question through the influence of world opinion was not in the reckoning. The wise, prudent thing, therefore, to do, was first to establish a world court before which the cause of any oppressed people might be brought. This is just what he had in mind and what he succeeded in doing. To have thrust a settlement of Ireland's affairs into the foreground of the peace conference and to have made it a sine qua non would have been futile and foolish, and might have resulted in disaster. Unfortunately, the friends of Irish freedom, deprecating and bitterly resenting well-considered methods like this, were desirous of having the matter thrust into the early conferences at Paris. The President knew that England would never consent to this and would cut this idea. If the President had done so, England would undoubtedly have withdrawn from the conference and thus the great cause of the League of Nations, which formed the basis of the peace conference, would have been lost.

President knew that England would never consent to this and would cut this idea. If the President had done so, England would undoubtedly have withdrawn from the conference and thus the great cause of the League of Nations, which formed the basis of the peace conference, would have been lost.

Paris, June 27, 1919.

Tumulty.

I entirely agree with the general tenor of your cable of the twenty-fifth about the Irish question and I firmly believe when the League of Nations is once organized it will afford a forum not now available for bringing to the opinion of the world, and of the United States in particular, to hear on just such problems.

WOODROW WILSON.

Of course, the thing which lay close to Woodrow Wilson's heart was the setting up of the League of Nations. Unless England and France should consent to the establishment of a league as part of a world settlement, the solution of the Irish question through the influence of world opinion was not in the reckoning. The wise, prudent thing, therefore, to do, was first to establish a world court before which the cause of any oppressed people might be brought. This is just what he had in mind and what he succeeded in doing. To have thrust a settlement of Ireland's affairs into the foreground of the peace conference and to have made it a sine qua non would have been futile and foolish, and might have resulted in disaster. Unfortunately, the friends of Irish freedom, deprecating and bitterly resenting well-considered methods like this, were desirous of having the matter thrust into the early conferences at Paris. The President knew that England would never consent to this and would cut this idea. If the President had done so, England would undoubtedly have withdrawn from the conference and thus the great cause of the League of Nations, which formed the basis of the peace conference, would have been lost.

The original and only LENTZNER'S, 512 Franklin Av.—"The House That Guarantees"

MULTY TELLS OF WILSON'S EFFORTS TO ASSIST IRELAND
The foundation stone upon which the armistice was based, would have been by the board. The President was looking far beyond a mere recognition of the Irish Republic. He was seeking to accomplish its security and guarantee its permanency through the instrumentality of a world court like the League of Nations. What would it have availed Ireland to have been granted dominion government or independence unless contemporaneously with the grant that was set up an instrumentality that would guarantee and protect it? The only thing upon which the peace conference functioned was the settlement of the affairs of those nations affected by the war.

Why didn't Wilson bring Ireland's cause to the attention of the peace conference? Was the query which frequently reached us at the White House, interrogating the President on this matter, he said:

"It was not within the privilege of the conference of peace to act upon the right of self-determination of any people except those which had been included in the territories of the defeated empires—that is to say, it was not then within their power—but the moment the covenant of the League of Nations is adopted it becomes their right. If the desire for self-determination of any people in the world is likely to affect the peace of the world or the good understanding between nations it becomes the business of the league; it becomes the right of any member of the league to call attention to it; it becomes the function of the league to bring the whole process of the opinion of the world to bear upon that very matter."

After his return from Paris he, in conversation with me, commented as follows on article of the Covenant of the League of Nations: "That article is the favorite article in the treaty, so far as I am concerned. It says that every nation which is likely to affect the peace of the world is everybody's business; that it shall be the friendly right of any nation to call attention to it; it becomes the function of the league to bring the peace of the world to bear upon that very matter."

Under the covenant of the League of Nations we can mind other people's business, and anything that affects the peace of the world, whether we are parties to it or not, can be our business. We can force a nation on the other side of the globe to bring to that bar of mankind any wrong that is afoot in that part of the world which is likely to affect the good understanding between nations, and we can oblige them to show cause why it should not be remedied. There is not an oppressed people in the world which cannot henceforth get a hearing at that forum, and you know what a hearing will mean if the cause of those people is just. The one thing that those doing injustice have most reason to dread is publicity and discussion. At present what is the state of international law and understanding? No nation has the right to call attention to anything that does not affect its own affairs. If it does, it cannot only be told to mind its own business, but it risks the cordial relationship between itself and the nation whose affairs it draws under discussion; whereas under article XII, which I had the honor of advocating, the very sensible provision is made that the peace of the world transcends all the susceptibilities of nations and Governments, and that they are obliged to consent to discuss and explain anything which does affect the good understanding between nations.

British Author's Views.
Sir Frederick Pollock, in his valuable work on the League of Nations, comments pointedly on this privilege: Various Irish writers, including some who deserve serious attention, have raised the question whether the standing problem of Irish autonomy can come before the League of Nations. There is only one way in which this could happen—namely, that the Government of the United States should declare Irish-American sympathy with qualified nationalist claims in Ireland to be capable of disturbing good understanding between Great Britain and the United States. That is a possible event if a solution is not reached within a reasonable time, but it is more likely that a confidential intimation from the United States would not only settle the formal reference to the Council, but avoid the necessity for it.

The friends of Ireland in this country have often asked me the question: "Would Woodrow Wilson have intervened in behalf of Ireland?" I can answer this question only by saying that Ireland has never had a truer friend than Woodrow Wilson. From the day that we went to war it has been his steadfast purpose to induce the Government of England to settle the Irish question justly and permanently. In my opinion he is the most intelligent champion of the Irish cause, for his statesmanlike approach to a settlement of the problem is the only one that holds hope of success.

As for myself, I believe that Ireland is going to be free in company with the rest of the world and in accordance with the new world order which shall function through the machinery for justice and liberty which is provided for in the covenant of the League of Nations, and is provided for nowhere else. As I completed this chapter, an article appeared in a Washington newspaper apparently complimentary of the President's foresight, showing that by September, 1921, Mr. de Valera had arrived at the same view. The article seems to show Mr. de Valera as insisting that the British Government grant Ireland membership in the League of Nations as one of the guarantees of autonomy.

HILL ESTATE IS $10,350,000

By the Associated Press.
ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 1.—Mrs. Mary T. Hill, who died here Nov. 22 at the age of 75, left an estate valued at $10,350,000, according to a petition by six of nine heirs to the estate, filed in Probate Court here yesterday.

Mrs. Hill was the widow of James J. Hill, railroad magnate, widely known as the "Empire builder" of the Northwest. The petition was signed by James N. Hill of New York, Gertrude Gawn of New York and four other married daughters living in or near St. Paul.

Illinois Central System Points to Its Leadership in Passenger Service

The existence of a railway system is justified by its ability to serve the public with transportation. The measure of its service is the measure of its worth. As one example of its high standing, the Illinois Central System invites the attention of the public to those things which are indicative of its capacity for efficient passenger transportation service.

Much depends upon personnel. As an organization the Illinois Central System is composed of a body of 60,000 faithful and efficient workers. Its officers have advanced through the ranks of the service, thus acquiring the practical experience for intelligent supervision. The efforts of the organization are concentrated on making the Illinois Central System, in point of service, the outstanding railway system in the United States; and that means in the world, for American railroads have long held, and continue to hold, the leadership of the world in efficient transportation service.

Much depends upon equipment. Up-to-date and well-maintained equipment is the first essential to passenger service of the high type which the Illinois Central System strives to give at all times. For years the Illinois Central System has been a leader among the railway systems in adding to its equipment, keeping its equipment well maintained and developing its roadway facilities.

The Illinois Central System is a leader in the amount of steel passenger equipment in use. Sixty per cent of the passenger cars on the Illinois Central System are of all-steel or steel-underframe construction. Steel cars are expensive, but they are a generally recognized factor for the safety and comfort of passengers.

The latest figures available show the percentage of all-steel and steel-underframe passenger cars in the service on the railroads of the country as a whole to be less than 39 per cent.

The passenger on the Illinois Central System is assured of a safe, comfortable trip in a car of good construction and modern convenience, over a smooth-riding track of heavy rail and ties, fully ballasted and well maintained, hauled by a locomotive of sufficient power and in such a condition of maintenance as to give every reasonable assurance of scheduled movement.

For the most part, each locomotive is regularly assigned to the same engineer, who takes a personal pride in its condition. This is believed to be one of the reasons for the small number of engine failures on the Illinois Central System, a record which is outstanding among the railroads of the country.

The regularity with which Illinois Central System passenger trains maintain their schedules indicates the high order of our passenger service. The percentage of passenger trains maintaining schedule, by months, for 1920 and the current year to November 1 follows:

	1920	1921
January	93.4	97.8
February	96.4	98.5
March	94.0	98.3
April	93.4	98.5
May	94.2	99.2
June	96.4	99.1
July	96.9	99.1
August	96.8	99.1
September	96.7	98.6
October	97.3	98.1
November	97.0	98.1
December	93.8	98.5
Average	95.5	98.6

The patrons of the Illinois Central System find courteous and sympathetic attention in every department. Employees take great pride in our reputation for courtesy.

Service is now the only basis of competition among the railroads. Since rates are standardized, the Illinois Central System cannot offer rate bargains to command patronage, but it can offer—and it is constantly developing—the organization, equipment and facilities for unusual service.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

O. H. MARKHAM
President, Illinois Central System.

MASKED MEN KILL NEGRO BOY
15-Year-Old Lad Taken From Sheriff at Ballinger, Tex.

By the Associated Press.
BALLINGER, Tex., Dec. 1.—A crowd of masked men took Robert Murfure, 15-year-old negro boy, from the custody of Sheriff Flint, three miles from here, at noon yesterday, and, tying him to a post, riddled his body with bullets. The negro was charged with assault upon a 9-year-old white girl. The girl's condition is not considered serious.

The victim of the negro's attack did not tell her mother of what had occurred until the next morning. She said the negro had threatened her with death if she told of the attack. The girl's father is dead and her mother is employed at a local hotel, where the negro also worked.

The HUMPHREY Radiantfire

At Last—A Perfected Gas Heater that Gives You Amazing Warmth at Low Cost

You have probably wondered for years why someone has not made some real improvement in home heating.

Your dreams have come true in the Radiantfire—a marvelously efficient and beautiful fireplace heater. It is not to be compared with asbestos grates and gas logs or anything you have ever seen before in an auxiliary heating device.

The blue flame generated by the super-combustion gas burner of a Radiantfire is absolutely odorless. At the stroke of a match you get more heat than you ever dreamed possible. It is radiant heat—the same pure, healthful heat you get from the sun—reflected from a glowing mass that is indescribably beautiful.

From a Radiantfire you get all the charm and infinitely more heat than from the ordinary wood or coal fire—without the trouble—without the dirt. And it's economical! It will save you from one to two tons of coal every winter.

You simply must see a Radiantfire to appreciate the new comfort and satisfaction it brings to any home.

There is a Size and Style of Radiantfire to Meet Every Requirement, from the Portable Heater to Art Models for Artistic

REPUBLICAN RECORD SCORED BY GARRETT

Democratic Leader to Print Remarks in Congressional Record "Extra."

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The record of the Republican party in the extra session of Congress is described as a "disgraceful failure" by Representative Garrett of Tennessee, acting Democratic leader of the House, in a statement to appear in the Congressional Record today. Although the Congress is not in session, it will issue an "extra" of the Record to accommodate the many members who desired to "revise and extend" their remarks of the last few days of the session.

Garrett, in his statement, calls the tax law a "makeshift thing for which none should care to take responsibility." Reviving to the Republican claims of achievement made by Representative Mondell of Wyoming, the party's House leader, Garrett says that all of the legislation that was good was nonpartisan, presented as such, discussed as such and passed as such.

Garrett's remarks of the last few days of the session, which the party in power had promised to "revise and extend," he continues, "there has been a disgraceful, a distressing and, what is destined to be to that party, a disastrous failure."

Garrett quotes the words of Senator Penrose, Republican of Pennsylvania, made in connection with the consideration of the tax bill in the Senate, that the measure did not place the tax system of the country on a stable basis, and inquires when the country can expect something of a permanent nature.

"In their clamor for an extra session in 1919," he says, "for the alleged purpose of tax revision, in their delay of two years and eight months in attempting such revision, in the crassness and bungling apparent in the making of the thing just passed, the Republican party is confronted with two alternatives."

Discusses Tax Measure.
"If their clamor for the extra session of 1919 and their failure after having it to take action, was in order that the people might become rebellious and resentful under the war tax burden, and so vote for a change in executive administration, then the party stands convicted of resorting to methods violative of all the ethics of statesmanship and they should be turned from power."

"If, on the other hand, they have done their best, if they have believed themselves to be honest and conscientious, if they have really tried to provide a tax measure which will give relief to business and distribute taxation equitably, then they stand convicted of stupidity and utter incompetency."

State Has Only One More Witness in Murder Trial of Former Postmistress.

By the Associated Press.
ORLANDO, Fla., Dec. 1.—The case of Lena M. T. Clarke, former postmistress at West Palm Beach, and Baxter Patterson, a chauffeur, jointly charged with the murder of Fred A. Mullimore, former employee in Miss Clarke's office, who was shot to death in her hotel room here Aug. 1, was expected to go to the jury late today for a verdict.

The defense closed its case yesterday, and the State in offering rebuttal testimony announced just before court adjourned that it had only one witness to introduce at the forenoon session today and expected to conclude within a short time.

Miss Clarke, in her testimony, said Patterson had nothing to do with the killing of Mullimore and that he had been employed only to drive her from West Palm Beach to Orlando.

Rabbit O'Dowd's Load And Holding Him the Decision

Referee Sharpe Penalizes Jumbo Boxer for Rule Violations in Flanagan Fight

By John E. Wray.
Because he "loafed" through the first half of his bout with Flanagan at the Armory last night, O'Dowd's load was heavily penalized by Referee Harry Sharpe. At Thomas, St. Louis, out of 12 rounds, O'Dowd was given a 10-10 decision.

Referee Sharpe explained that besides "loafing," he was guilty of holding, in instructions to the contrary, O'Dowd's offenses in this particular case so flagrant in the second round that the referee stopped the fight at that time while he O'Dowd against further violation of the rule. It was some time over, before O'Dowd could resume his rule violation throughout the fight, he was putting Flanagan's arm in on the referee's "blind side."

In contrast to his excellent against Jimmy Murphy in his previous appearance here, O'Dowd was a very poor showing in the rounds. He did not appear to be his best. In the last few he cut loose and showed his ability.

In the ninth it appeared that O'Dowd was in serious trouble and thereafter he round a succession of right the Flanagan jaw visibly the St. Louisan.

The storm, although not continued throughout the three rounds and supplied real punching shown by Flanagan came through smiling, having kissed the canvas a mark.

On mere points O'Dowd effective in the ninth round Flanagan was throughout bout.

Flanagan is a hard body, his long arms and shows effective body guard, while are seldom more than a from his chin.

Flanagan's attacking of O'Dowd's left-hand jab with an occasional straight that seldom connected but in drawing blood from O'Dowd in the fifth, Flanagan was round and landed several punches, but O'Dowd was in the eighth round.

At the close of the contest, the decision on the part of the penalties rolled him for loafing and holding.

Prejudices are all at Thomas and Kid No. 10, who were well fought and men gave good exhibition. Gene Riley of the main event, after battling widely seconds with Young known to fame here, found chin for one of his producers and in 52 seconds all over.

O'Dowd's Loafing
And Holding Cost Him the Decision

Referee Sharpe Penalizes Columbus Boxer for Rule Violations in Flanagan Go.

Last Night's Results

Patsy Flanagan, St. Louis, was declared winner over Eddie O'Dowd, Columbus, in 12 rounds, weight 115 pounds at 5 p. m. "Loafing" and "holding" by O'Dowd caused him to be heavily penalized by Referee Harry Sharpe. Outpointed Al Thomas, St. Louis, outpointed Grub Whalen, St. Louis, eight rounds, 140 pounds. Kila Newton, Staunton, Ill., outpointed Morris King, St. Louis, six rounds, 115 pounds. Gene Miller, St. Louis, knocked out Young Francis, St. Louis, 52 seconds.

By John E. Wray.

Because he "loafed" through the first half of his bout with Patsy Flanagan at the Armory last night and failed to extend himself until after the eighth round, Eddie O'Dowd of Columbus, O., was heavily penalized by Referee Harry Sharpe, who gave the decision to the St. Louis bantamweight after 12 rounds of rather tame battling.

Referee Sharpe explained after the bout that besides "loafing," O'Dowd was guilty of holding, in spite of instructions to the contrary. The visitor's offense in this particular bout was so flagrant in the second round that the referee stopped the bout and ordered time out while he cautioned O'Dowd against further infractions of the rule. It was some time, however, before O'Dowd consented to cease his rule violations; and throughout the fight he continued putting Flanagan's arm in chancery on the referee's "blind side."

In contrast to this excellent work against Jimmy Murphy in a previous appearance here, O'Dowd made a very poor showing in the early rounds. He did not appear to be in his best in the last four rounds, but he loosened up and showed flashes of his ability.

Flanagan Is Punished.

In the ninth it appeared that Patsy was in serious trouble as O'Dowd clouted him almost at will. A left handed swing started the trouble and thereafter during the round a succession of right chops to the Flanagan jaw visibly affected the St. Louisan.

The storm, although not so effectively continued throughout the next three rounds and supplied the him real punching shown by either man throughout the fight. However, Flanagan came through unscathed, without having kissed the canvas or without a mark.

On more points O'Dowd was more effective in the ninth round than Flanagan was throughout the entire bout.

Flanagan's attacking efforts, consisting of left-hand jabs, oblique, with an occasional straight right, did not seem to be doing much in drawing blood from O'Dowd's nose. In the fifth Flanagan had his best round and landed several snappy punches, but O'Dowd was at no time in the slightest distress.

At the close of the contest O'Dowd feared the decision on points but for the penalties rolled up against him for loafing and holding.

Preliminaries All Good.

Al Thomas and Kila Newton were too fast and clever for their respective opponents, Grub Whalen and Morris King, although both bouts were fought and both defeated men gave good exhibitions.

Gene Riley of the mule-kick wallop, after battling wildly for a few seconds with Young Francis, unknown to fame here, found the enemy chin for one of his famous sleep-punches and in 52 seconds it was all over.

Surgeons said there was every indication that the operation would be successful, but this will not be certain until Faber attempts to pitch next season.

Roberts of Centre Greatest Football Player in America Coach Charles Moran Thinks

Teacher of Famous Danville Team Names Five Other Members of His Eleven, in Selecting All-Southern Aggregation—Mc-Millin and Hubale Are All-America Stars, He Adds.

By Charley Moran, Centre College Coach.

DANVILLE, Ky., Dec. 1.—I consider Red Roberts the best football player in the United States today at any position on this mythical team. I place him at tackle. His huge frame is impregnable to line forcing and he is wonderfully active for such a big man. His ability to diagnose plays is another great asset. He punishes the opposing defense and leads his backs down field for substantial gains. He may also be called back to carry the ball in the pinch and will come through with the needed gain. Roberts is also a punter and drop kicker.

I moved Cregor from guard to tackle this year and he has been a pillar of strength in the Colonel's defense. Cregor is powerful, aggressive and always on the alert. I name him along with Roberts for the other tackle position. His work against Harvard was especially impressive.

Strong Ends Available.

On the ends I like Reynolds of Georgia and James of Centre. Both of these men are fast, strong and fearless. Few plays have gone around either of these men this fall and both are good at spilling interference. Both accept passes in sensational style and are vicious tacklers.

Caton of Auburn, and Day of Georgia have played at center on their respective teams this fall. I have selected them as my guards. They are both good on the field and have the strength and power to break up any thrusts that come their way. They are steady, offensive players and are always there in the pinch. Any team that attempts to run its plays over this pair generally gets a severe setback.

Hubale at center, I believe, is the best in the country. He has been the backbone of a line that has held its own from Boston to New Orleans. The center position on my team is the most difficult berth to fill. His passing is perfect and to my mind answers every requirement of the modern center. He is a great wrecker of enemy forward passes. He plays a roving game and is a low and sure tackler.

For the quarterback station there is only one man considered. Mc-Millin is the greatest field general in the country today. Mc-Millin, because of his versatility and power and great influence over his men is my selected captain of this team. He is a super-performer for he can pass, carry the ball, punt and tackle in remarkable fashion. He is a puzzle to the opposing team. They never know what he will do next. As a broken field runner he tops the list. Mc-Millin is unselfish and plays up the entire team instead of himself.

Tech Has Two Fine Backs.

Around Mc-Millin, I would flank Snoddy of Centre, Barron and Harlan of Georgia Tech. Snoddy is the best man in receiving forward passes that I have ever coached. A beautiful broken field runner and always powerful and alert on the defense.

Judy Harlan, Georgia Tech, at fullback, is a dynamic line plunger, with weight and speed that give his charges the proper "punch." No team in the country can stop him from crossing the goal line if his eleven has the ball on the 15-yard stripe. He is a consistent defensive fullback post.

In Barron of Georgia Tech I have named an elusive back, who is also an excellent ground gainer for straight line plunging and off tackle plays. He is quick at sizing up an opportunity and turning it over to advantage for his team. He is also a strong defensive player.

I am confident that this combination could hold its own against any all-star eleven in the United States.

Hoppe Averages
48 in Exhibition

Former 18.2 Champion Plays Good Balk Line in 1600 Points Against Peterson.

Willie Hoppe, defeated for the 18.2 balkline championship recently, after holding the title for 15 years, closed his exhibition with Charles C. Peterson, local expert, here yesterday. Hoppe won both balkline games, 250 to 115 and 250 to 59. At three-cushions, Hoppe won in the afternoon 25 to 19 in 17 innings, while Peterson captured the evening game, 25-22 in 13 innings.

Hoppe played good balkline in his games against Peterson. For the 1600 points, the former title holder had an average of 48.5, scoring his needed points in 33 innings. In the first day, he scored 600 points in 15 trips to the table; the following day he counted 500 in nine and yesterday he tallied 500 in 11 for an average of 45-11.

The balkline star also made a good showing at three-cushions. In the four games, Hoppe scored 97 points in 111 innings for an average of .88. This is quite a mark for one who has not been playing the game regularly.

In the series here against Peterson, Hoppe won all six games at 18.2, while he captured three of the four single games.

In the 18.2 games yesterday, Hoppe had runs of 109 and 107 in the evening for his best single counts. His best single effort at three-cushions was a seven in the afternoon.

Hoppe and Peterson are scheduled to play at Bloomington, Ill. today.

Billiken Students Advocate Lenient Eligibility Rules

Disatisfaction Expressed Over Inability to Gain Admittance to Conference.

Unofficial expressions of opinion at St. Louis University yesterday, after it became known that Washington University's Athletic Council had voted to discontinue the Billiken game as the annual Thanksgiving day feature indicated that the school might refuse to accept an early-season football date on the Pikers' schedule. There were strong expressions against accepting any terms earlier than November.

Among the students there also were heard ripples of dissatisfaction over the present status of Blue and White football. It was pointed out that the Billikens are not in the Missouri Valley league, but are in Missouri Valley rules. They have made several applications for membership, but this year the authorities did not even go through that formality. The school officials say that yesterday advocated a more lenient set of eligibility rules, a return to the policy of the days when St. Louis University ranked high in national football circles.

For some time there has been agitation at the Grand avenue school in favor of "going out and getting" a football team.

No Official Comment.

Athletic Director Father Hermans and Coach Steve O'Rourke declined to comment, explaining that they had received official notice of the action from the Piker school.

Regarding the allegation of the Piker student body that St. Louis is the Billiken's "biggest shell game on record," the statement can be proved erroneous by an analysis of the schedules of the two schools for the past few years. The 1930 schedule of football games shows that the Billikens have been strong teams prior to the Thanksgiving game, among them being such powerful elevens as Detroit, Marquette and Creighton. In the Billiken's eyes, the Piker team was considerably muzzed up and entered the Piker fray in very poor condition. This season the Billikens trotted in from improved after the holidays with DePaul, and at no time up to the Piker game did they present a full lineup.

The Billikens are looking forward to a highly successful season in 1932, due to the great amount of potential strength which will be at the disposal of Coach O'Rourke at the start of the season. Eight men of unquestionable ability will move to the varsity from Joe McGinley's freshman squad and several others who look very promising will also step into the big class from the yearlings.

What is left from the 1931 squad should prove to be the making of a team such as the Billikens have not had for years.

An Ambitious Schedule.

The school is attempting to arrange a Notre Dame, Centre, Marquette, Creighton and several of the Missouri Valley Conference teams, including Nebraska.

For the first time in the history of St. Louis University football all the Billiken's varsity players will be St. Louis public high schools and several county and nearly preparatory institutions will be the guests of the Blue and White athletic authorities at the annual football banquet to be held Saturday at the Planters Hotel.

The banquet, which is held annually under the auspices of the Missouri Athletic Club, is one of the most important events in the city's sports calendar. It is on a more pretentious scale this year than in former years. Every effort will be made to revive the spirit of 1927 among the alumni of the Blue and White school.

Letters will be awarded to the 1931 football men and the team captain for the 1932 season will be elected at the banquet.

KENRICK BASKET STARS ON BILLIKEN SQUAD

Nineteen candidates responded to Coach Steve O'Rourke's first call for basketball material at St. Louis University. Captain, George W. Roche, guard, and Riley, another guard, are the veterans of last season's squad who will again show on the court for the Billikens. Kelly and Steele, members of the 1931 Kenrick High School five which captured the city high school championship are among the aspirants for positions on O'Rourke's five. Dixie Drake, Clarence Egler and Stevin Gersaghy, stars of the football eleven, will try for places on the basketball team this year.

O'Rourke has been very successful in handling basketball teams in the past and turned out consistent winners while in charge at St. Mary's and also at St. Thomas' Military Academy.

Change in Schedule.

The Fairground No. 2 of the Municipal Soccer League has made a change in its schedule in order to accommodate the Paulian team of that group. According to the cup tie schedule the Paulians will play the Ben Millers of the St. Louis Soccer League Dec. 11. The managers group decided at a meeting held yesterday that the game scheduled for Dec. 11 on Dec. 4 in order to give the Paulians the benefit of the open date. The game will be played on Saturday, Dec. 4.

The games of this group which were postponed on Nov. 13 on account of the cup games will be played on Saturday, Jan. 14.

Washington Secretary of War

Weeks commented on the football team for its "gameless and indomitable spirit" shown in the game with the navy when the army was defeated.

Scullins to Face Strong Eleven in 3d Round Game

Johnston City, Ill., Has Won Five Games Played and Scored 22 Goals to Two.

According to information received from Robert Leck, secretary of the Johnston City (Ill.) soccer team, which will play the Scullins of the St. Louis Soccer League in a third round U. S. F. A. cup game at a high school field, Sunday, there are three American-born athletes on the team. They are D. Reeves, J. Kolar and William McGill. Most of the others are English.

One of the athletes, with Johnston City, has opposed St. Louis players before. He is F. Blockley, a full-back, who formerly played with the Pullmans of Chicago. Blockley was considered a star fullback.

Secretary Leck says the national-ity of 10 of the Johnston players are English. They are J. Hope, William Hope, C. Turpin, E. Martin, R. Hardy, J. Pearson, F. Blockley, Thomas Baker, William Murray and J. Wood. J. Gallagher, the other athlete, is an Irishman.

According to Leck's letter, Johnston City has played five games this season, two in the U. S. F. A. cup competition and three in the Southern Illinois circuit. In the national title series, the eleven defeated West Frankfort, 1-0, after an extra half-hour in the first round, and downed the Swedish-Americans of Chicago, 3-2, in the second round. In three league clashes, the eleven has tallied 18 goals against none, according to Leck.

At a meeting of officials of the St. Louis Soccer League last night it was decided to play a preliminary game between the leading St. Louis eleven and the Ben Millers, Sunday. The battle is scheduled to start at 1:15 o'clock, with 30-minute halves. This will permit the start of the cup clash between the Scullins and Johnston City not later than 2:30 o'clock. In the cup tilt, 45-minute halves will be played.

On the following Sunday, when the Miller clash between the Scullins and Johnston City is played, the Municipal League in a cup tilt, the Scullins and Screw Co. will battle in the curtain raiser.

By booking the preliminary tilt, it will be possible to make up one full week's schedule, which otherwise might have to be dropped because of cup games breaking into the league's schedule.

Manager Tate Brady of the Scullins yesterday wired the Johnston City management that all legitimate expenses would be guaranteed.

CENTRE COLLEGE HAS NOT ARRANGED GAME WITH GEORGIA TECH

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 1.—Anonymous letters and telegrams from Atlanta containing "sneers and insults" to Centre College have prevented Georgia Tech and Centre from arranging a football game for 1932 in Atlanta. It was said tonight by Dr. Wallace of the Georgia Tech Athletic Committee.

Dr. Wallace made public excerpts from a letter from J. B. Wood of Chicago, alumni manager of Centre athletics, saying: "The fall we have been receiving regularly letters, telegrams, marked copies of papers, covered with sneers, insults and the like." Wood added, according to Dr. Wallace, that "in justice to Tech, I should say they are most likely in no way responsible" but that it was felt it would be best to defer a game in Atlanta until "this spirit among the followers of the Georgia Tech has undergone a change."

Dr. Wallace issued a statement saying no one connected with Georgia Tech and no friend of the school had anything to do with sending such communications to Centre College authorities.

GOLF COURSE IS ONLY 191 YARDS IN LENGTH

The smallest golf course in Ohio is said to be located at South Charleston, Clark County.

Charles Kemp, a South Charleston business man, has constructed a hole course in his extensive dooryard, and in company with several business and professional men of the village, is getting a lot of fun out of the miniature course.

The distance to the first hole is 25 yards, second 12 yards, third 21 yards, fourth 20 yards, fifth 13 yards, sixth 25 yards, seventh 26 yards, eighth 14 yards and ninth 27 yards. The total course is 191 yards in length.

The links were laid out by Mr. Kemp's brother, J. Finley Kemp, who has played on nearly all of the golf courses of this and other countries. The play requires two shots for all holes except the ninth, which takes three strokes because of a special hazard, said to include a large rock. The players use only an approach iron and a putter.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Hark, From the Tomb!

EDDIE COCHEMS, who gave St. Louis the greatest football eleven it has ever known, and the football world an inheritance it has neglected to acknowledge—the forward pass—still has his eye on the city he placed on the football map.

In a letter to the Post-Dispatch Cochems writes in part as follows: "I have never forgotten the stirring times when I was trying to coach St. Louis University football men and to interpret in all its possibilities the then 'new game.' I really believe, after reflecting here in the East for the past eight or nine years, and at the recent Army-Notre Dame battle, that the St. Louis 'varsity' team of 1906-07 still could show something to them all, today. If I had another bunch of men like I had then, I feel that I could 'bust up the game.'"

"I am surely sorry to learn of the continued defeats of St. Louis University. What's the matter? Of course, it's lack of material, but I wish the old school the best of luck."

Defense Has Progressed, Too.

COCHEMS is not far wrong. Although he wrought his miracles in 1906-07, the first two seasons of the new rules permitting forward passing, nothing has developed since to surpass or equal the varied and truly remarkable display of overhead football shown by Jack Schneider and Brad Robinson.

But Cochems could not "bust up the game" today. Defense against the forward pass did not play in his day, because all the major elevens of the West and East laughed at the "new game" and ignored it. In fact, they did not realize its possibilities for at least ten years. Only now are they doing the things Cochems' men did 15 years ago.

Willie Should Worry.

SHEPARD BARCLAY, who is handling the billiard team of Horemans and Cochran, and who was in the city yesterday, has a play with Washington and a match at 18.1 balkline, in which department of the game Barclay admits William is the reigning king.

"I would like to revive some interest at this branch of billiards," Barclay commented; "and, as everybody knows, Horemans really specializes in this variety of billiards rather than at 18.2. Hoppe has a clear title to this style and we want to take it from him if we can, and make some money for all concerned."

But just at present Willie is not interested in making money for "all concerned" but for himself. And the tour is now the thing with Willie. He was not practicing 18.2 style, furthermore, with an 18.2 challenge already in and a match coming, before next March.

ST. JOSEPH BOWLER SETS NEW MIDDLE-WEST
MARK WITH 726 SCORE

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 1.—G. Falkenbach of St. Joseph, Mo., rolled 726 in the singles of the Middle West Bowling Association's tournament here yesterday, breaking the world's record established on Nov. 20 by G. Becker of Milwaukee. Becker's score was 725.

Falkenbach started out by smashing 235 pins in his first set. His second counted 225 and the final 246. Falkenbach was the only bowler to get in the first 10 standings in either the singles or doubles events yesterday. Other bowlers made only mediocre scores.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—University of Oregon's football team will sail from here Dec. 14 for Honolulu to play the University of Hawaii and a team of all-stars during the Christmas holidays. Last year the University of Nevada made the Christmas trip to the Islands.

Wilson Lucky Boxer.

In all the history of the prize ring there never was so fortunate a boxer as Johnny Wilson, the middleweight champion. Possessing no more ability than the average 150-pound fighter of 19 years ago, Wilson has been able to put away $110,000 during the year and a half that he has held the title. During his entire career Wilson has been able to beat only one man of any standing. That one man happened to be a champion.

Honker and his flock as tiny specks against the sky Honker's voice had been heard and recognized.

Over in the loneliest part of the Old Pasture a pair of sharp ears pricked up at the sound of that voice and Old Man Coyote lifted his head to listen. Then he got to his feet, for he had been taking a nap on his doorstep, and facing the North, he stood like a statue, listening and watching. As the sound of that voice grew louder and clearer a look of eagerness and longing and craftiness crept into his eyes.

He saw those tiny specks grow larger and larger. He saw Honker and his flock turn and slant down toward the Green Forest and finally disappear behind the trees of the Green Forest.

Old Man Coyote grinned when he said this and licked his lips again.

Other ears and quite as sharp as those of Old Man Coyote had heard that voice as soon as he had. They were black ears and there were two pairs of them. They had listened eagerly and two sharp faces had turned to the north and watched those specks grow larger and larger and finally disappear behind the trees of the Green Forest.

"I think, my dear, we have rather neglected Paddy the Beaver of late and that tonight will be a good time to make him a call," said Reddy Fox.

"For once I quite agree with you," replied Mrs. Reddy. Then they looked at each other and licked their lips.

Not far away another pair of sharp ears had been listening. They were good as ever. They were the ears of old Granny Fox. "A Goose," murmured Granny, "is the finest eating I know of, and it is a long, long time since I have tasted one. It will be a fine night to call on my old friend, Paddy the Beaver."

In the Green Forest and not very far from Paddy's pond another pair of ears had listened and twitched as they listened. A short stub of a tail had twitched, too. A hungry look had crept into a pair of savage eyes in a round face. Toward the Red Cat walked over to a tree and sharpened his claws.

"Those geese will sleep in the pond of Paddy the Beaver tonight. I think it will be worth while to spend a little time over there," he growled. Then he sharpened his claws again and his fierce eyes grew hungrier-looking than before.

And so it was that there was a sudden and great interest in the pond of Paddy the Beaver.

Modern Maid

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

No Mother Is Ever Satisfied With the Woman Her Son Marries—and, at That, She Hasn't Anything on Him.

PROBABLY one reason why men hesitate to marry the business woman is because she knows (1) why the boss is always "in conference" when his wife telephones; (2) who remembers to tell him to remember his wedding anniversary; and (3) just how much work is really done during "a long, hard day at the office."

When a certain type of woman tells you how well you are looking, you immediately begin to wonder whether its your hat that is on crooked, or your nose that needs powder.

What a man thinks of widows—they are sweet, helpless creatures deserving chivalrous protection; what a woman thinks of them—that they are necessary evils; what they think of each other—

Grandma showed her ears and covered her legs, granddaughter reverses the process; therefore, it is argued, there is no moral difference. But, oh, the difference to beauty!

Poets are the press agents of love—and put not your trust in press agents!

Those goddesses who used to go around admiring young men asleep must have been rather less fastidious than the modern woman—unless it is only the effete man of today who slumbers with his mouth open and his hair towed.

Sometimes a cat says "miau! miau!" and sometimes she tells her husband that she saw you lurching the other day "with such a good-looking man!"

When a woman doesn't know whether she loves a man—she doesn't!

"THE LOVE COWARDS"

By HAZEL DEYO BATCHELOR

CHAPTER XLIII
The Heart of a Woman.

IN spite of herself, Nancy felt her cheeks flushing and with an effort she dropped her eyes quickly and turned away. In an instant Dr. Hunt was by her side, drawing her to her feet.

"Nancy, my darling! O, I know I oughtn't to speak to you now, because you're quite worn out. But I love you, dear, I love you so very much!"

He held her hands tightly in his, but he made no effort to draw her into his arms. Even at that moment Nancy could not crush back a quick thought of the difference between this man and Bruce. Here was no masterful, domineering man taking what he wanted, but a man to be respected and looked up to, a man to trust, and yet a man she could never love as she loved the man in the next room, whose very touch had the power to thrill her beyond the power of expression.

"Why, why?" And at the rebelliousness of the question an involuntary little cry escaped her. She didn't want to love him. God knows she had fought this madness that had crept over her with all her strength, and yet that moment in his arms tonight, when he had held her closely, possessively, kept coming back to taunt her.

"I hate him, I hate him!" stormed her mind rising in utter revolt.

"You love him, you love him!" mocked her heart, and there was no gainsaying the truth. Reason went down before this stirring of the pulses, this mad leap of something within her that responded to his touch, and despite herself as she would, Nancy was helpless in the grip of something that was stronger than she was.

And then suddenly she was tempted. How easy it would be to accept the love of this man who was so entirely worthy of it. To seek protection in his strength from the fiery dominance of a man who cared nothing at all for her. One little word, a small gesture, and her pride could never love him and even her peace of mind would be constantly threatened with memories. But even if it were possible to bring herself to do this thing, she liked and respected Dr. Hunt too much to marry him for such a reason.

Nancy raised her gray eyes suddenly to Dr. Hunt's blue eyes, and something in their depths made him suddenly very tender. He was the kind of man who is always splendidly under control, who would never be selfishly demanding, and in spite of his love for Nancy, he could not urge her to a decision with that look in her eyes of utter weariness. Instantly he was the physician, eager to serve her only in his professional capacity.

"Don't think anything more about it," he said quickly, keeping the eagerness out of his voice by main force. "I shouldn't have spoken only you seemed so small and helpless, and so utterly desirable, my sweetheart." Huskiness crept into his voice in spite of himself, and his hold of her hands tightened. "But you will think about it," he whispered very softly, "not tonight, but soon, very soon."

She raised her eyes to his full of protest. She must tell him the truth. It wouldn't be fair to let him hope. But as she wavered, he raised her hands suddenly to his lips and at the same moment the door opened noiselessly and Nancy looked across Dr. Hunt's crisp, fair hair straight into Bruce Henderson's fiery eyes.

Tomorrow—Bruce Turns the Tables.

Women's Moral Standard Said to Be Lower

Dr. Alfred T. Schofield, a prominent London specialist in nervous diseases, made a sensational attack on present-day morals in a lecture at the Institute of Hygiene.

"There is no doubt that the standard of morality has been lowered," he said, "and the slump isn't confined to the poorer, slummy districts but is found also in the fashionable West End district."

"Among the causes of the fall of morality is the war. Since the war young men and women are openly proclaiming that they are animals, which is untrue."

"Woman's moral standard has been lowered by the indecency of her dress. In saying that women's clothes are indecent I am simply stating a truth. All her deterrents against immorality are weakened."

You don't have to coax big and little folks to eat Kellogg's Corn Flakes

Just as soon as you serve Kellogg's you'll note fussy and faded appetites getting mighty sharp; you'll find big bowls being handed back for "just a few more Kellogg's," mother—they're wonderful!

And, that'll make you glad, for Kellogg's Corn Flakes are a great speed-start for the day's doings! They make for health and happy digestions! Kellogg's are never lighter or tough, but always joyously crisp!

Kellogg's—the original Corn Flakes—will be a revelation to your taste if you have been eating imitations! For your own enjoyment, do this—compare the big, sunny-brown Kellogg's Corn Flakes with other "corn flakes." Eat some of Kellogg's—then try the imitations! You'll realize then why Kellogg's Corn Flakes are the largest and fastest selling cereal in the whole world!

Do more than ask for "corn flakes." Insist upon KELLOGG'S Corn Flakes in the RED and GREEN package! My, but it's worth while!

MY FAVORITE STORIES
By IRVIN S. COBB

(One of a series of short funny stories by the celebrated American humorist which will appear daily in the Post-Dispatch on this page.)

EASY FOR THE TRAINED GERMAN MIND.

TWELVE years ago when I was a reporter on the New York Evening World, the body of a young woman, expensively dressed, was found in a thicket in a lonely and remote part of Long Island. She had been murdered—shot through the head. Harry Stowe of our staff, since deceased, was the first reporter to reach the place. The body had not been moved; and in searching about it Stowe happened upon something the local coroner had overlooked—a scrap of discolored paper, bearing printed and written words in German upon it.

Stowe quietly slipped the paper into his pocket and caught the first train for town. He couldn't read German himself, so he took his find to the office of the German Consul. There he met an elderly, spectacled, exceedingly serious-looking undersecretary, who translated the printed and written inscriptions for him.

Then the secretary wanted to know what it was all about. Stowe told him, explaining that the identity of the murdered woman was still a profound mystery—that nobody could guess who or what she was. He described her clothing in some detail.

"Pooh!" snorted the German. "Stupid fools that these American policemen are! To the trained mind the whole thing is simplicity itself. By a process of elimination and deduction it is possible to ascertain beyond question exactly what manner of woman this was."

"Could you do it?" asked Stowe, hopefully.

"In one little minute!" said the undersecretary impressively.

"Go ahead, then, please, and do it," begged Stowe.

"Very well," said the German. "My young friend, please follow me closely. This paper shows that some woman bought at a store in Leipzig certain small articles, kitchen utensils—a breadknife, a potato masher, a coffee grinder. No woman in Germany, unless she was a housewife, would buy such things. So!

On the other hand, this woman, you tell me, wore $40 corsets. No woman in Germany, unless she was an actress, would wear $40 corsets.

"No actress would buy common household utensils. That would make her a housewife! No housewife would wear $40 corsets. That would make her an actress! And there you are!"

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

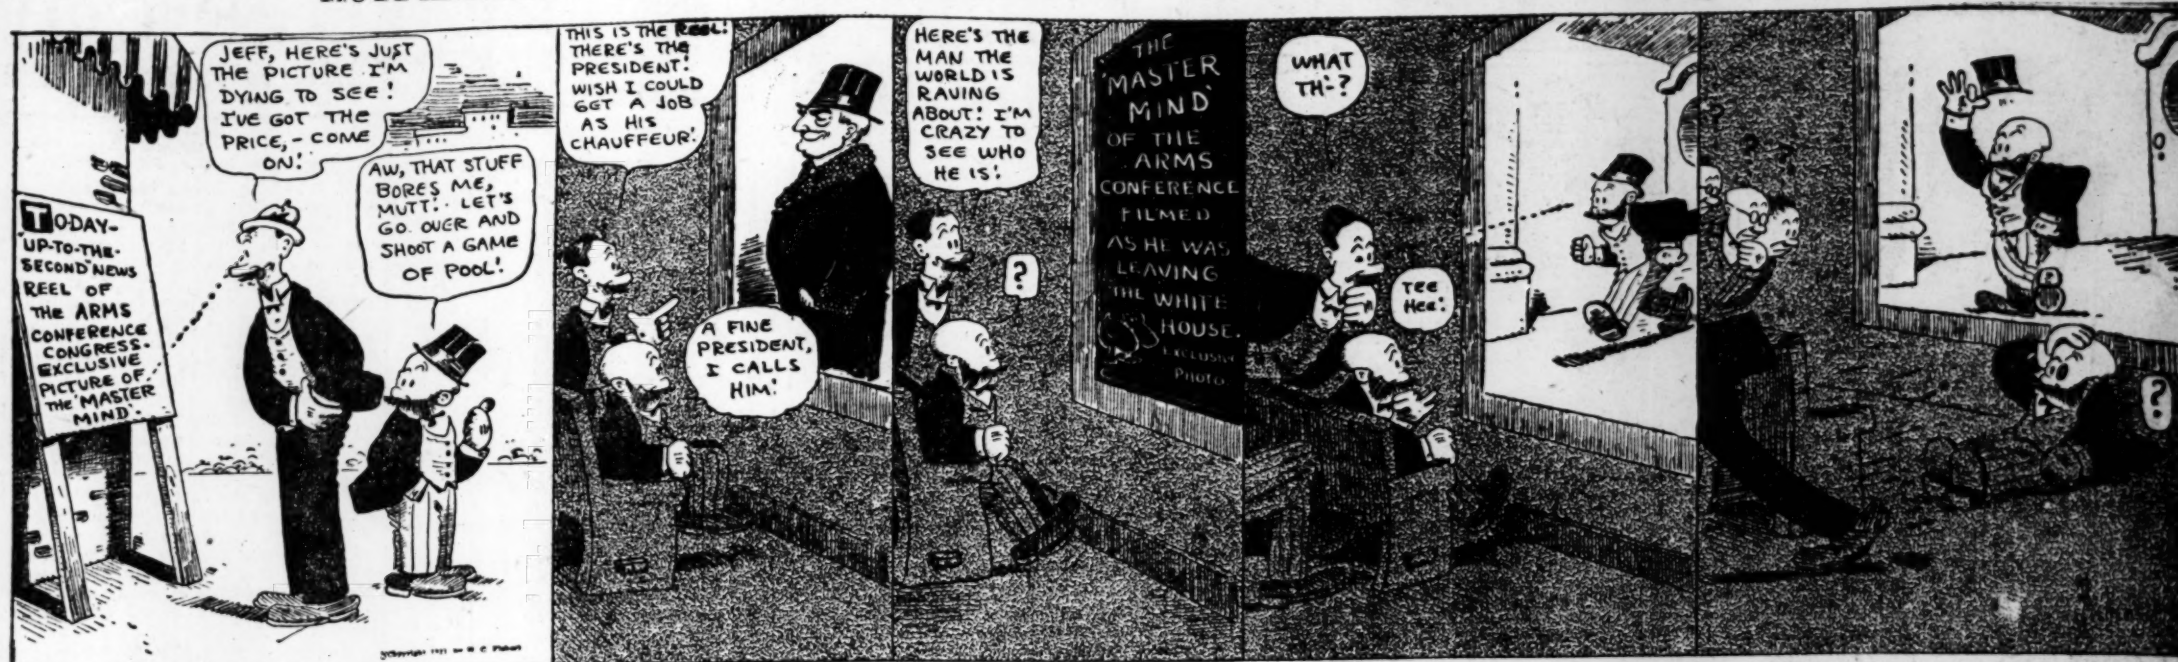

IN DEFENSE OF WOMEN.

From all that we have read of Mrs. Borgia,
The commonest conventions she defied;
She fed the Florence boys on Sundry sorts of deadly poison,
And shut them in the cellar till they died.
She had but little heart, and still less conscience,
And all the great historians agree
That the life in which she gloried
Was both murderous and horrid,
And not what any lady's ought to be.
In early youth, her thoughts were turned to evil,
And yet, as far as anyone's aware,
The way that she was holier,
Was not shockingly immodest,
And never did she ever bob her hair.

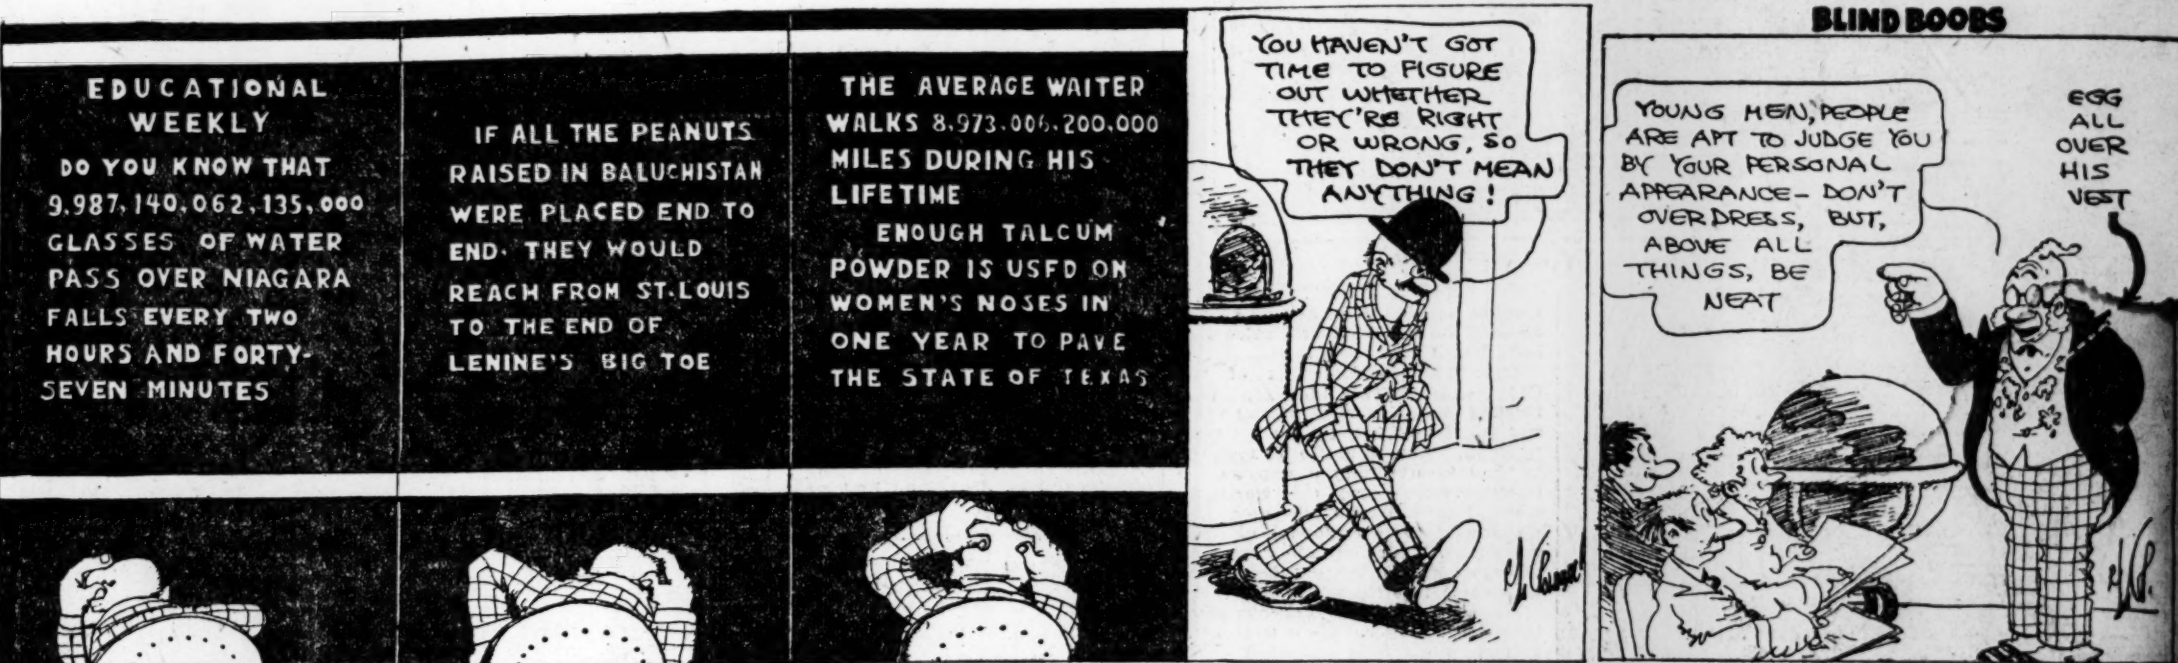

We've never had a brief for Cleopatra;
She led a very dissipated life,
She had not the least objection
To bestowing her affection
On a Roman who already had a wife.
She conducted her affairs with easy freedom,
And, according to reliable reports,
With the people of her nation
She possessed a reputation
Of—to put it mild—a very doubtful sort.
But, although she did a lot of things she shouldn't,
Though her suitors thronged her palaces in flocks,
None of those who have written of her
Have been able to discover
That she ever rouged her cheeks or rolled her socks.

There's a moral in the two preceding stanzas,
Which you'll fathom with a minimum of guests.
If you find there's something shady
In the conduct of a lady,
It's the way she acts, and not the way she dresses.
